Game Protectors' Rights Explained

Ammer Quotes Ohio Revised Code To Answer Numerous Queries

The right of state game protectors to enter private property to investigate hunting violations was clarified today by Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer.

Numerous discussions on the subject have developed here following the fatal shooting of Irvin J. [illegible]me protector of Fa[illegible] Patrick was sh[illegible]r Washington C[illegible] a former resident of Pickaway County.

Quoting Section 1531.13 of the Ohio Revised Code, Ammer noted that game protectors "shall enforce all laws against hunting without permission of the owner or authorized agent of the land on which such hunting is done. They may arrest (a violator) on view and without issuance of a warrant therefor."

A spokesman for the Wildlife Department in Columbus told The Herald that every year numerous inquiries and complaints as to the rights of game protectors to enter private property come to the department's attention. The spokesman went on to say that many persons feel game protectors "invade their right of privacy".

* * *

AMMER CONTINUED to quote the law by noting that "any regularly employed (and) salaried game protector may enter any private lands. . .if he has good cause to believe and does believe that a law is being violated." Patrick reportedly had arrested a hunter for possessing two hen pheasants, which is illegal in Ohio.

"Such game protector. . . .may search any place which he has good reason to believe contains a wild animal or any part thereof, taken or had in possession contrary to law . . .or (any) device used in such violation, and seize any he finds so taken or possessed," Section 1531.13 continues.

"If the owner or person in charge of the place to be searched refuses to permit such search, upon filing an affidavit in accordance with law (in an appropriate court) and upon receiving a search warrant issued thereon, such. . . .game protector may forcibly search the place described. . . . .if in such search he finds anything contrary to wildlife) laws, he shall seize them and arrest the person in whose custody or possession they were found.

"Each game protector shall post a bond in a sum not less than $1,000. . .for the faithful performance of the duties of his office."

Ammer also noted the next section of the law, 1531.14, as follows:

* * *

"ANY (game protector), while in the normal, lawful and peaceful pursuit of. . .investigation work or enforcement may enter upon, cross over, be upon and remain upon private owned lands for such purposes, and shall not be subject to arrest for trespass while so engaged or for such cause thereafter.

"Such person, upon demand, shall identify himself to the owner, tenant or manager of such privately owned lands. . . . .".

Three Ballot Recounts Set Early In Week

Recheck Of Votes In Precinct 3-B Sought By Grant

A recount of ballots cast in three races November 8 will be made by the Pickaway County Board of Elections next Monday and Tuesday.

Republican Harry Grant, declared a two-vote loser to incumbent George Crites in Circleville's third ward councilmanic race, has asked for a recount of votes in precinct 3-B.

Grant won this precinct in the unofficial returns, 110-88, but lost in precinct 3-A, 58-82. The recount of 3-B's ballots will be made at 7 p. m. Monday in the election board office.

A recount of ballots in the Ashville mayor contest will be made Monday at 2 p. m. The request was filed by Richard Bozman, a write-in candidate, who lost to Harry L. Margulis, 212-242.

Bozman won Ashville's west precinct, 133-86, but lost the east precinct, 79-156. Bozman has asked for a recount in both precincts.

* * *

A THIRD recount, to be made at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday, has been requested by Lawrence Reid, apparent loser to Lloyd White in his bid for the Muhlenberg Township clerk's position.

Reid, a write-in candidate, gathered 58 votes to White's 76. Reid garnered 16 votes in the Darbyville corporation precinct to 47 for White, and in the township precinct, he got 42 votes to White's 29. Reid is asking for a recount in both precincts.

Fee for a recount is $10 per precinct. An applicant can have his money refunded if the recount shows a four percent margin of error.

If a candidate so desires, he may have an attorney witness the recount, but none of the candidates has indicated he will take advantage of this privilege.

Wilson Slated For Tetimony In GM Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Testimony that General Motors refused in 1952 to sell engines to a bus manufacturing competitor put the name of Secretary of Defense Wilson before a senate subcommittee today.

A Pentagon spokesman said Wilson, who was GM's president in 1952, would have no comment now on the testimony but would "certainly" answer any questions the senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee might want to ask.

The subcommittee resumed today its open hearings on GM's business practices and the factors which helped it grow.

Chairman O'Mahoney (D - Wyo) said he was "inclined to believe" that the defense secretary was the "Mr. Wilson," not otherwise identified, on whose orders Thomas P. Butler said yesterday his firm was denied engines.

Butler, vice president of the Flexible Co., Loudonville, Ohio, said his firm had ordered GM engines for its buses through the Great Lakes Diesl Co., Cleveland.

He then produced for the committee a memorandum of Jan. 29, 1952, relating that Dick Cook, Great Lakes sales manager, advised:

"I just received a telephone call from the Detroit office stating that orders had come down from Mr. Wilson who had a meeting with other officials in Chicago that we were not to deliver any engines to the Flexible Co. as they are competitors of ours."

He Says City Pay Is Far Too High

NORTH PLATTE, Neb. (AP)— William L. Wood, a retired railroad man, had been filling the job of park commissioner on a parttime basis at $10 a year.

Then the city council made provision for a fulltime commissioner at $4,000 yearly. Wood said he wanted the job but would not take more than $600. The council first said that wouldn't do. Yesterday, they reconsidered and told Wood, "OK it's yours."

An Income Tax For Circleville?

An ordinance now moving through city council would set up a municipal income tax — perhaps one-half of one percent — for the city of Circleville.

Members of the lawmaking body, at a meeting last Tuesday night, gave assurance that a final vote on the proposal cannot be taken until a "thorough study" is made of the 17-page measure. Councilmen explained that they—like the general public—have not yet had an opportunity to "find out what it's all about."

The ordinance is designed to avert what some public officials warn is a financial emergency facing the municipality. And it has important sections for virtually everyone in the city.

As a public service to help inform the public on the far-reaching provisions included in the measure, The Herald will publish a number of its outstanding sections. The first installment in this series, which readers are advised to clip and save for future reference, appears in today's issue on page 8.

U. S. Planning 10 Earth Satellites

Scientists Hope At Least Half Will Circle Earth Like Moon

CHICAGO (AP)—The United States plans to fire at least 10 instrument-filled satellites into space in 1957 and 1958, hoping that half of them will circle the globe in the manner of the moon.

This was disclosed last night by Dr. Joseph Kaplan, chairman of the group entrusted with the American satellite program. He outlined some new details about the satellites in a speech to the American Rocket Society.

"It is planned to launch a number of such vehicles," Kaplan said.

Kaplan heads the U. S. National Committee for the International Geophysical Year, a section of the National Academy of Sciences which President Eisenhower empowered to conduct the satellite program. The program is part of the United States contribution to the International Geophysical Year, a period from July 1, 1957, to Dec. 31, 1958, when scientists of more than 40 nations will cooperate in a study of the earth and its atmosphere.

* * *

THE "MINIMUM satellite program" proposed by his group's executive committee, Kaplan said, consists "of approximately 10 instrumented birds, with the expectation that at least five of the birds will be successfully launched into their orbits, circulating about the earth for a period of about two weeks, at heights of about 200 to 800 miles."

The satellites are to be carried into space by giant rockets. Then they are expected to travel freely about the earth, much as does the moon. Inside will be instruments to measure ultraviolet rays, cosmic rays and other particles in space. Measurements taken from observation points on the ground with the satellites as references are expected to add a man's knowledge of the earth, itself.

Kaplan said scientists are confident they can design a package of instruments weighing between 25 and 50 pounds to fit into the small satellites.

"The basic techniques for the launching and instrumentation of an artificial earth satellite are now avaiable," Kaplan said.

At the time of President Eisenhower's announcement that the United States would conduct an artificial satellite program only one such satellite was mentioned. It was described then as about the size and shape of a basketball.

Some rocket scientists who listened to Dr. Kaplan's speech, including representatives of General Electric Co. and the Glenn L. Martin Co., which have been awarded contracts for constructing a satellite, said the address indicated:

(1) The program is going slower than expected; (2) the satellites may be smaller than first anticipated; (3) they probably won't be shaped like basketballs.

Heffner Is Lauded By Hospital Board

Members of the Berger Hospital board of governors were on record today with formal commendation for the work of Harry W. Heffner, whose term as a member of the board has expired.

Heffner has played an outstanding role in the hospital's growth and modernization through recent years. He will be succeeded on the board by Russ Palm, recently named to the position by Pickaway County commissioners.

The county and city are each represented by four members on the board.

At a meeting Wednesday night, the hospital board adopted a resolution as follows:

* * *

"THE PURPOSE of this resolution is to express the very great appreciation of Richard Simkins, Dr. E. S. Shane, Dr. R. S. Hosler, Howard Koch, Glenn Grimes, Durward Dowden and R. L. Brehmer, members of the board of governors of Berger Hospital, to Harry Heffner for the unequaled ability and the willingness to use that ability for the benefit of Berger Hospital, and to make the task of each of us so much easier.

"Harry Heffner has shown superior ability to interpret contract phrases, to visualize blue-print in detail, in a manner that was invaluable during the planning and construction of the new medical and surgical wing at the hospital.

"At great sacrifice of his time, from his business and personal affairs, Harry Heffner supervised contract details, the allocation of various funds, and meticulously recorded and filed important information, avoiding costly errors and unnecessary delays — all for the benefit of users of the facilities at the hospital, the physicians and surgeons, the patients, and the taxpayers of the county.

"All of us are deeply appreciative of the time that Harry Heffner devoted to the affairs of the hospital, even during the time he was obliged to break in a new secretary in his own business, unexpectedly, and could ill afford the time that the work of the board required.

"It is the feeling of all of us that no other person in our community could approach or equal the devotion, ability and diligence that Harry Heffner has given to the affairs of Berger Hospital during the two terms of four years each, the last of which expired November 1st of this year.

India Building Record High Dam

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Work on the world's highest dam was formally started today by Prime Minister Nehru. He pressed a button that started concrete pouring into the huge basin on the Sutlej River 150 miles north of here.

The dam, known as the Bhakra-Nagal irrigation and power project, will take at least four years to build and cost about $327 million.

The height at completion will be close to 750 feet. Hoover Dam in the United States, at 726 feet is now the world's highest dam.

Akronite Unable Save Wife, Son From Home Fire

AKRON (AP)—A mother and her 10-year-old son burned to death early today, just beyond the futile reach of the husband and father.

The tragedy was at the one-room cottage of an unemployed factory worker, Theodore McVicker, 38, in nearby Barberton.

During the night his wife Agnes, 35, awakened to find flames curling around the outside of their oil stove. She aroused her husband and they tried to put out the fire.

Failing in that, they tried to get the stove through the door. Mrs. McVicker, with their son John helping, was pushing from the inside. McVicker was pulling outside.

Suddenly the stove exploded, showering flames over the inside of the house. The bulk of the stove remained wedged in the door, and McVicker was unable to get in.

Later the bodies of the woman and child were found, with their arms locked around each other. The house was destroyed.

$15,750, Bank Cashier Missing

THIEF RIVER FALLS, Minn. (AP) —Travelers checks worth $14,000 are missing with $1,750 in silver from the Northern State Bank here, Sheriff Arthur Rambeck said yesterday after an audit.

Kenneth Lindbergh, bank cashier, vanished Saturday. The sheriff said it was possible Lindbergh, who was seen talking to a stranger at the bank Saturday, had been abducted. The 44-year-old cashier's car also is missing.

New East-West Word War Ahead

Foreign Ministers Meet Ends In Total Discord Over Germany

GENEVA (AP) — Closing statements by the Big Four foreign ministers yesterday left no doubt the struggle for Germany, concentrated for three weeks here, will be transformed into a wider conflict of international politics and propaganda.

The foreign ministers' conference ended with the spirit of Geneva, born four months ago at the summit conference here, torn to tatters. There was no decision to hold another session.

Each side blamed the other for the total failure of the talks to produce any constructive agreements on German reunification, a European security pact, atomic disarmament and the removal of Iron Curtain barriers.

After polite but tough exchanges in a 3½-hour final session, the foreign ministers headed for home.

U. S. Secretary of State Dulles headed for Washington aboard President Eisenhower's plane Columbine III.

The most authoritative comment possible from the Western side was that it may take months to tell which side won.

* * *

MUCH MORE was at stake at the meeting than agreements on the points directly at issue. From this broader perspective, several results can be listed before the final score is in:

1. The Soviet government was shown to be following a much tougher line in relations with the West than at the summit conference in July.

2. A demonstration of Russia's no-compromise attitude, even on minor problems of East-West relations, can be expected to counteract the softening influence on Western policies.

3. An equally uncompromising attitude of the West on basic problems such as German unity and disarmament controls showed Russia the West is not willing to buy a settlement with the East at the cost of large concessions.

4. The cold war is sill on—and seems likely to continue for a long time—in the sense that Russia seeks to drive the Western Powers out of Germany and the United States out of Europe while the West wants to roll back Soviet power.

The Western ministers made a final play as the conference ended. They sent a message to the West German government deploring the "cruel disappointment" of the conference for the German people. But they held out hope for the future, saying:

"The three foreign ministers believe the Soviet government will come to recognize that its own self-interest will be served by ending the injustice of a divided Germany."

Prosecutor Ammer Seeks Re-Election

With the echoes of the November 8 balloting still rustling in the records, the first sign of next year's political excitement was already on the horizon today.

Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer has announced he will seek re-election on the Republican ticket. He took over the prosecutor's office in the presidential elections of 1952, defeating the Democratic incumbent, Guy Cline, now judge of Probate Court.

Announcing his intentions to file for another four-year term, Ammer expressed confidence that all of the problems facing the county can be solved "in the course of ordinary administration". His statement was taken to mean that he feels the county, even though it has serious financial problems to meet, will not need to consider drastic changes in operating policy.

(Warnings that the city of Circleville faces a financial emergency next year led recently to the introduction of a municipal income tax ordinance in city council.)

* * *

"WE HAVE financial problems indeed," Ammer said. "Everybody knows the county needs more money. But I feel sure the county will be able to find enough operating revenue in the course of ordinary administration.

"We will, of course, have to make special efforts, and we will have to watch our budgeting, but I see no particular reason to be concerned over the county's financial outlook."

Ammer also noted that, in the field of criminal law enforcement and jurisdiction, the docket is up to date.

The prosecutor said he was especially anxious to have the public understand his plans to give up extra work done for the city in municipal court.

He notified City Solicitor George Gerhardt that he will no longer be able to handle the city prosecutions, and that he hopes to be relieved of that task as soon as possible. Ammer stressed that he made the decision reluctantly, and only when it became apparent that he had to give all of his time to his work as prosecutor and to his private law practice.

This was disclosed last night by Dr. Joseph Kaplan, chairman of the group entrusted with the American satellite program. He outlined some new details about the satellites in a speech to the American Rocket Society.

"It is planned to launch a number of such vehicles," Kaplan said.

Kaplan heads the U. S. National Committee for the International Geophysical Year, a section of the National Academy of Sciences which President Eisenhower empowered to conduct the satellite program. The program is part of the United States contribution to the International Geophysical Year, a period from July 1, 1957, to Dec. 31, 1958, when scientists of more than 40 nations will cooperate in a study of the earth and its atmosphere.

* * *

THE "MINIMUM satellite program" proposed by his group's executive committee, Kaplan said, consists "of approximately 10 instrumented birds, with the expectation that at least five of the birds will be successfully launched into their orbits, circulating about the earth for a period of about two weeks, at heights of about 200 to 800 miles."

The satellites are to be carried into space by giant rockets. Then they are expected to travel freely about the earth, much as does the moon. Inside will be instruments to measure ultraviolet rays, cosmic rays and other particles in space. Measurements taken from observation points on the ground with the satellites as references are expected to add a man's knowledge of the earth, itself.

Kaplan said scientists are confident they can design a package of instruments weighing between 25 and 50 pounds to fit into the small satellites.

"The basic techniques for the launching and instrumentation of an artificial earth satellite are now avaiable," Kaplan said.

At the time of President Eisenhower's announcement that the United States would conduct an artificial satellite program only one such satellite was mentioned. It was described then as about the size and shape of a basketball.

Some rocket scientists who listened to Dr. Kaplan's speech, including representatives of General Electric Co. and the Glenn L. Martin Co., which have been awarded contracts for constructing a satellite, said the address indicated:

(1) The program is going slower than expected; (2) the satellites may be smaller than first anticipated; (3) they probably won't be shaped like basketballs.

Heffner Is Lauded By Hospital Board

Members of the Berger Hospital board of governors were on record today with formal commendation for the work of Harry W. Heffner, whose term as a member of the board has expired.

Heffner has played an outstanding role in the hospital's growth and modernization through recent years. He will be succeeded on the board by Russ Palm, recently named to the position by Pickaway County commissioners.

The county and city are each represented by four members on the board.

At a meeting Wednesday night, the hospital board adopted a resolution as follows:

* * *

"THE PURPOSE of this resolution is to express the very great appreciation of Richard Simkins, Dr. E. S. Shane, Dr. R. S. Hosler, Howard Koch, Glenn Grimes, Durward Dowden and R. L. Brehmer, members of the board of governors of Berger Hospital, to Harry Heffner for the unequaled ability and the willingness to use that ability for the benefit of Berger Hospital, and to make the task of each of us so much easier.

"Harry Heffner has shown superior ability to interpret contract phrases, to visualize blue-print in detail, in a manner that was invaluable during the planning and construction of the new medical and surgical wing at the hospital.

"At great sacrifice of his time, from his business and personal affairs, Harry Heffner supervised contract details, the allocation of various funds, and meticulously recorded and filed important information, avoiding costly errors and unnecessary delays — all for the benefit of users of the facilities at the hospital, the physicians and surgeons, the patients, and the taxpayers of the county.

"All of us are deeply appreciative of the time that Harry Heffner devoted to the affairs of the hospital, even during the time he was obliged to break in a new secretary in his own business, unexpectedly, and could ill afford the time that the work of the board required.

"It is the feeling of all of us that no other person in our community could approach or equal the devotion, ability and diligence that Harry Heffner has given to the affairs of Berger Hospital during the two terms of four years each, the last of which expired November 1st of this year.

India Building Record High Dam

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Work on the world's highest dam was formally started today by Prime Minister Nehru. He pressed a button that started concrete pouring into the huge basin on the Sutlej River 150 miles north of here.

The dam, known as the Bhakra-Nagal irrigation and power project, will take at least four years to build and cost about $327 million.

The height at completion will be close to 750 feet. Hoover Dam in the United States, at 726 feet is now the world's highest dam.

Iranian Premier Shot By Fanatic

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A Moslem fanatic shot and wounded Premier Hussein Ala in the shah mosque in the centre of Tehran today.

The premier, accompanied by some of his cabinet, was attending the mosque to mourn the death of Mostafa Kashani, son of Ayatullah Kashani, the Moslem religious leader who played a major part in ousting Mohammed Mossadegh from the prime ministry in 1953.

Ala, a veteran of Iran's diplomatic service and a former ambassador to the United States, was named premier last April 7.

Low Of 15 To 22 Due In Buckeyedom Tonight With Snows Possible

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A strong cold wave, with biting wind and blinding snow in some areas, swept across the northern part of the nation today.

Winds sent the arctic air across the plains and on eastward through the Ohio Valley.

The gale - like winds packed trouble into Ohio ahead of rapid drops in temperature.

A fast-rising Miami River, swelled by 2.87 inches of rain that flooded the Dayton area, threatened today to force major evacuations.

Three residential sections just outside Dayton were partially evacuated last night because of rising river waters. Clarence Murphy, Shiloh fire chief, said waters there were two feet deep and slowly increasing in depth.

Red Cross chapters in Montgomery County cared for some evauees. Friends provided shelter for others.

Box 21, a Dayton rescue agency, and the Red Cross were alerted for a major evacuation along the Miami, said William S. Howe of the Miami Conservancy District.

LAST NIGHT the river was estimated at 11 feet deep in Dayton and rising nine inches an hour. Ten feet is normal flood stage.

The winds, which brought torrential rains over the state Tuesday night and yesterday, were followed by a cold snap.

The Weather Bureau's expected high for Ohio today was 26-34. Tonight's low will be 15-22. Snow flurries were forecast as a possibility.

Meanwhile, rural Darke County was digging out from under the debris caused by high winds.

Concrete block walls of an Urbana supermarket under construction toppled under high winds.

Many Ohioans had flooded basements. Columbus city engineers reported 200 such cases.

Akronite Unable Save Wife, Son From Home Fire

AKRON (AP)—A mother and her 10-year-old son burned to death early today, just beyond the futile reach of the husband and father.

The tragedy was at the one-room cottage of an unemployed factory worker, Theodore McVicker, 38, in nearby Barberton.

During the night his wife Agnes, 35, awakened to find flames curling around the outside of their oil stove. She aroused her husband and they tried to put out the fire.

Failing in that, they tried to get the stove through the door. Mrs. McVicker, with their son John helping, was pushing from the inside. McVicker was pulling outside.

Suddenly the stove exploded, showering flames over the inside of the house. The bulk of the stove remained wedged in the door, and McVicker was unable to get in.

Later the bodies of the woman and child were found, with their arms locked around each other. The house was destroyed.

$15,750, Bank Cashier Missing

THIEF RIVER FALLS, Minn. (AP) —Travelers checks worth $14,000 are missing with $1,750 in silver from the Northern State Bank here, Sheriff Arthur Rambeck said yesterday after an audit.

Kenneth Lindbergh, bank cashier, vanished Saturday. The sheriff said it was possible Lindbergh, who was seen talking to a stranger at the bank Saturday, had been abducted. The 44-year-old cashier's car also is missing.

New East-West Word War Ahead

Foreign Ministers Meet Ends In Total Discord Over Germany

GENEVA (AP) — Closing statements by the Big Four foreign ministers yesterday left no doubt the struggle for Germany, concentrated for three weeks here, will be transformed into a wider conflict of international politics and propaganda.

The foreign ministers' conference ended with the spirit of Geneva, born four months ago at the summit conference here, torn to tatters. There was no decision to hold another session.

Each side blamed the other for the total failure of the talks to produce any constructive agreements on German reunification, a European security pact, atomic disarmament and the removal of Iron Curtain barriers.

After polite but tough exchanges in a 3½-hour final session, the foreign ministers headed for home.

U. S. Secretary of State Dulles headed for Washington aboard President Eisenhower's plane Columbine III.

The most authoritative comment possible from the Western side was that it may take months to tell which side won.

* * *

MUCH MORE was at stake at the meeting than agreements on the points directly at issue. From this broader perspective, several results can be listed before the final score is in:

1. The Soviet government was shown to be following a much tougher line in relations with the West than at the summit conference in July.

2. A demonstration of Russia's no-compromise attitude, even on minor problems of East-West relations, can be expected to counteract the softening influence on Western policies.

3. An equally uncompromising attitude of the West on basic problems such as German unity and disarmament controls showed Russia the West is not willing to buy a settlement with the East at the cost of large concessions.

4. The cold war is sill on—and seems likely to continue for a long time—in the sense that Russia seeks to drive the Western Powers out of Germany and the United States out of Europe while the West wants to roll back Soviet power.

The Western ministers made a final play as the conference ended. They sent a message to the West German government deploring the "cruel disappointment" of the conference for the German people. But they held out hope for the future, saying:

"The three foreign ministers believe the Soviet government will come to recognize that its own self-interest will be served by ending the injustice of a divided Germany."

Prosecutor Ammer Seeks Re-Election

With the echoes of the November 8 balloting still rustling in the records, the first sign of next year's political excitement was already on the horizon today.

Pickaway County Prosecutor William Ammer has announced he will seek re-election on the Republican ticket. He took over the prosecutor's office in the presidential elections of 1952, defeating the Democratic incumbent, Guy Cline, now judge of Probate Court.

Announcing his intentions to file for another four-year term, Ammer expressed confidence that all of the problems facing the county can be solved "in the course of ordinary administration". His statement was taken to mean that he feels the county, even though it has serious financial problems to meet, will not need to consider drastic changes in operating policy.

(Warnings that the city of Circleville faces a financial emergency next year led recently to the introduction of a municipal income tax ordinance in city council.)

* * *

"WE HAVE financial problems indeed," Ammer said. "Everybody knows the county needs more money. But I feel sure the county will be able to find enough operating revenue in the course of ordinary administration.

"We will, of course, have to make special efforts, and we will have to watch our budgeting, but I see no particular reason to be concerned over the county's financial outlook."

Ammer also noted that, in the field of criminal law enforcement and jurisdiction, the docket is up to date.

The prosecutor said he was especially anxious to have the public understand his plans to give up extra work done for the city in municipal court.

He notified City Solicitor George Gerhardt that he will no longer be able to handle the city prosecutions, and that he hopes to be relieved of that task as soon as possible. Ammer stressed that he made the decision reluctantly, and only when it became apparent that he had to give all of his time to his work as prosecutor and to his private law practice.

Meanwhile a new storm swirled eastward from the Pacific spreading snow or rain from California to the Continental Divide.

Gale force winds swept off the Great Lakes and dropped from one to five inches of snow over western New York state. Highways were blocked, trees were toppled and there were numerous power failures.

At least two deaths and several injuries were attributed to the eastern storm. Wind gusts of 68 m.p.h. were recorded. Snow drifted to three feet in some areas. At least 30 schools were closed in western New York.

Northern Midwest areas also had fresh snowfalls ranging from one to three inches.

Temperatures dropped sharply in many Midwest areas which had reported near-record high readings Tuesday. Chicago's weather changed in 24 hours from a sunny 71 Tuesday to a chilly, windy 17 last night. Wind gusts of 60 m.p.h. were reported and full gale warnings were posted for Lake Michigan. Oklahoma City's plunge was from 77 to 16 degrees.

The freezing line extended from western New York southward through central Tennessee, into northern Texas, across northern Arizona and thence northwest to the central Oregon coast.

Egypt Claimed Rejecting U.N.

Israel Says Cairo Shuns Truce Proposal

JERUSALEM (AP)—Sources close to the Israeli government said today Egypt has rejected U. N. proposals for easing tension around the El Auja demilitarized zone.

Israel has not yet given a formal reply to the proposals made early this month by U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold but a spokesman last week said the Israeli government would support them.

Tension in the demilitarized zone along the Negev-Sinai desert border area flared two weeks ago into the bloodiest fighting since the end of the Palestine War.

Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, U.N. chief truce supervisor, returned from Cairo early this week but made no announcement on the outcome of his talks with Egyptian leaders.

Details of the U. N. proposals never have been announced.

In Washington yesterday, Israel asked formally for arms from the United States at cut-rate prices and on easy credit terms.

* * *

AMBASSADOR Abba Eban told the State Department Israel has a 'sense of alarming vulnerability" as a result of Egyptian purchases of Communist arms and urgently needs defense weapons.

Later Egyptian Ambassador Ahmed Hussein went to the State Department and warned that if the United States sends arms to Israel the Arab world will be convinced "the United States does not want our friendship."

Hussein also said Egypt "may be compelled" to make more arms deals with the Communists.

Israel is eligible to receive U.S. miltary equipment under the 1949 Mutual Defense Assistance Act. But the specified terms, to which Israel agreed in 1952, are cash on the barrelhead.

Steel Firms Get Warning On Merger

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Atty. Gen. Brownell said today he is prepared to take the Bethlehem Steel Co. and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. into court promptly if they should sign a merger agreement in the face of his disapproval.

Brownell discussed the Bethlehem-Youngstown situation in a speech in which he told the national Industrial Conference Board:

"Stopping steel mergers now seems the best chance to avoid the troublesome problem of undue concentration which the Clayton anti-trust Act seeks to prevent."

Last year Brownell rendered a legal opinion rejecting the merger plans of Bethlehem and Youngstown, which rank among the top 10 firms in the steel industry.

Again rejecting Bethlehem-Youngstown arguments that their consolidation would strengthen the competitive picture in relation to the U. S. Steel Corp., the attorney general said today:

"Not only would this proposed merger eliminate competition between Bethlehem and Youngstown but equally important, it would increase concentration in the hands of two companies already industry leaders, and thus widen the competitive spread between the merged companies and their smaller rivals."

"Many months ago," Brownell said, "we assured those companies' lawyers that should their clients go ahead with the merger, we would take every step to bring the case to prompt trial."

Russia Impresses Burmese Premier

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—U Nu, the Burmese premier, said today his Moscow visit has convinced him of Russia's "genuine desire for world peace."

Editors Predict Stevenson, Nixon To Be '56 Candidates

COLORADO SPRINGS (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Adlai E. Stevenson are the leading candidates for the 1956 presidential nominations in the view of most delegates attending the Associated Press Managing Editors Assn. convention here.

By a ratio of almost a 4-1, newsmen from all sections of the country predicted President Eisenhower will not seek reelection.

They see the farm problem and foreign policy as the two issues which will figure most heavily in the 1956 campaign.

These are the highlights of a poll of the editors taken at the meeting and tabulated today. They were asked in a written questionnaire whether they believed President Eisenhower will run; if not, whom do they consider the three persons most likely to win the Republican presidential nomination; whom do they consider the three most likely to win the Democratic nomination; and what they think the major issues will be.

* * *

ONLY 39 Of the 186 Newsmen expressed belief Eisenhower will be a candidate again; 147 thought he won't.

The editors voted Chief Justice Earl Warren of the United States the most probable rival of Nixon for the GOP nomination.

Of the editors participating in the poll, 86 listed Nixon as most probable Republican presidential nominee while 77 others list Warren.

Nixon received 61 votes as the second most likely candidate and Warren polled 39.

The vote for Stevenson on the Democratic side was overwhelming. He was listed by 156 editors. Next was Gov. Averell Harriman of New York. He polled 14 votes.

Harriman got 101 votes as the second most likely choice.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) far outdistanced all others as the third most likely candidate with 74 votes. He also had eight first-place votes and 39 second-place.

McCarren Security Law Faces Test

WASHINGTON (AP)—The five-year old McCarran internal security law, designed to control subversive organizations, faced its first Supreme Court test today in an appeal by the U. S. Communist party.

The party challenged the constitutionality of the act, under which it has been ordered to register as a puppet of the Soviet Union.

The issue went before the high court on a Communist appeal from a 2-1 decision by the U. S. Court of Appeals here that the law is valid.

N-S Turnpike Revenues Eyed

Toledo Spur Studied As To Feasibility

COLUMBUS (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche said today a preliminary report estimated that total revenues on a proposed Cincinnati-Conneaut turnpike with a Toledo spur would aggregate $29,123,000 in 1961.

Operating cost for that year was figured at six million dollars, making $23,123,000 available to make bond interest payments.

Neither Gov. Lausche nor Highway Director S. O. Linzell, ex-officio member of the Ohio Turnpike Commission, said whether the preliminary report indicated feasibility of the 400-mile project including a controversial Toledo spur.

Although officials were silent on persistent reports that construction of a Toledo spur is not feasible, figures released by Linzell showed the main section of the North-South turnpike represented 80 per cent of the entire project cost and would produce 93 per cent of the estimated gross revenue.

The governor's report said:

* * *

"ASSUMING that the cost of financing will be similar to that which prevailed in the financing of turnpike No. 1, calculations show that at an interest rate of 3¼ per cent on the full project, including the Toledo spur, in 1961 the revenues collected would be 1.21 times interest requirements.

"Omitting the Toledo spur and building the main line only the coverage would be 1.46. If only that portion of the turnpike running from Cincinnati northward to U. S. 40 at a point between Summerford and Brighton (in the Dayton-Springfield area), and also that portion of the main line running from the Pennsylvania border to turnpike No. 1 in Summit County, the coverage would be 2.07."

Turnpike officials say 1.5 is feasibility.

3 More American Missionaries Get Freedom In China

LONDON (AP)—Red China ordered today the release and deportation of three imprisoned Americans, Peiping radio said.

A broadcast, heard here, identified the Americans as Mrs. Homer V. Bradshaw, Marcellus White and Justin Garvey.

Mrs. Bradshaw was imprisoned with her husband in March 1951. Dr. Bradshaw, a member of the Third Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, and his wife both were medical missionaries.

The Rev. Marcellus White, 46, of Waltham, Mass., was serving as a Passionist missionary when he was jailed in February 1952.

The Rev. Justin Garvey, 40, of Union City, N. J., was sent to China by the Passionist order in 1946 to serve as a missionary. He was arrested in December 1951.

Many Republicans Said Out Of Step

NEW YORK (AP) — Republican Gov. Fred Hall of Kansas says many Republicans are "out of step with the President and with the people who voted for the Republican party in 1952."

"The more conservative Republicans," he said, "are suffering from a great delusion—the idea that there is in the world, particularly in the United States, a sort of trend toward socialism. 'Creeping socialism' they call it.

"To them," he continued, "the words 'progressivism,' 'liberalism' and 'socialism' are synonymous."

Morocco Sultan Back In Power

RABAT, French Morocco (AP)—Sultan Sidi Mohammed Ben Yousef settled to work today on a home rule agreement between France and his North African protectorate.

The 41-year-old Sultan returned to Morocco yesterday after two years in exile and said he hoped to form a government soon that would negotiate a home rule pact.

Crippled Fugitive Surrenders Self

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A repentant fugitive hitchhiked from Montana on crutches to give himself up to police yesterday on a 10-year-old bad check charge. The prosecutor agreed to dismiss the charge.

Police said the 47-year-old man, painfully crippled by arthritis, seeks to re-establish himself here.

He was also wanted for breaking parole, but officers have recommended that it be extended.

Police said a warrant for his arrest on the check charge has lapsed and that checks needed for evidence have been lost.

Drunk Drivers Given Choice Of Jail Dates

Two motorists, found guilty in city court of drunk driving, have been permitted to decide the dates on which they are to serve their jail terms.

Lawrence Willard, 56, of Ashville, will serve two of his three days Friday and Saturday and then return the following Friday. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Carl White.

George L. Jacobs, 36, of Circleville Route 1, will serve his time Nov. 25-28. He was arrested by Officer Leroy Hawks following an accident on E. Main St. Wednesday involving three cars.

Each man was also given the "usual" fine of $100 and costs, and had his driving rights suspended for six months.

City court officials also corrected a report on John Teets, of Clarksburg, who had been found guilty of using fictitious license plates. Teets was not sentenced to a two-day jail term as had been reported by the court, but was fined $50 and costs.

'Enlightened' Businessman Is Defined

COLUMBUS (AP) — The president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce said today the enlightened businessman is a "steward of free enterprise who wants to help fill human needs."

Boyd Campbell of Jackson, Miss., in an address prepared for the 62nd annual convention of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, said there is more trust and confidence in private enterprise today.

The modern businessman, he said, "wants to create jobs, to give people greater purchasing power, to give them more satisfaction in their work, to give them a sense of belonging.

"But so many men of business seem to dwell on negativism as if we were possessed by the gloomy gremlins of disaster."

Campbell said Americans face problems, but should approach them "in the spirit of a confidence that abundance and prosperity should inspire."

He said, "This ought to be our shining opportunity to entrench an understanding, a loyalty, a devotion and individual dedication to the free enterprise system and to the institutions guaranteed by our constitution which made that system possible."

Big Argentine Labor Combine Is Taken Over

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Maj. Gen. Pedro Aramburu's new Argentine government, using tank-supported Marines and army troops, last night seized control of the General Confederation of Labor (CGT), backbone of the old Peron regime.

The government made its surprise move as a fizzling general strike by CGT kept key meat-packing plants closed and hit other important industries. Essential services were unaffected.

Simultaneously with the swoop by the troops on CGT headquarters here, police arrested about 100 leaders of the trainmen's unions who were preparing to call a railroad strike. Failure of the railroad workers to join the three-day-old stike was one of the main reasons why the walkout had missed its goal of paralyzing the nation.

The government appointed Navy Capt. Alberto Patron as administrator for CGT, which claims six million members. A government decree said all officials of the central organization and its member unions had been removed from their posts. A commission was named to investigate CGT. The government now controls CGT's funds.

The new labor minister, Raul Migone, said the old CGT under Peron was "an instrument of force and violence." He said, "We will begin, therefore, to destroy this organism of domination over the workers."

Adlai's Son OKs Bid For Nomination

HONOLULU (AP)—Army Pvt. Borden Stevenson says of his father Adlai's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination:

"I think he's by far the finest candidate and I'm solidly behind him."

Borden's tune was different last August when he expressed hope his father wouldn't run because "I'd rather not see father go through that ordeal."

Borden explained his change of mind:

"Now that he's running I've completely revised my thinking."

Ike Aides Studying Dem Highway Plan

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Weeks said today after a conference with President Eisenhower that administration officials are backing away from a bond-financed federal highway program in favor of a pay-as-you-go system.

The pay-as-you-go approach was favored by the Democrats who blocked Eisenhower's plan for a $25 billion program, to be financed by borrowing, at the last session of Congress. Weeks did not report the President's current personal views on the question.

northeastward across the Midwest was centered over Ontario and had increased in intensity.

Readings were as much as 40 degrees below normal in the Rockies and 15 degrees below normal in the eastern and southern states.

Meanwhile a new storm swirled eastward from the Pacific spreading snow or rain from California to the Continental Divide.

Gale force winds swept off the Great Lakes and dropped from one to five inches of snow over western New York state. Highways were blocked, trees were toppled and there were numerous power failures.

At least two deaths and several injuries were attributed to the eastern storm. Wind gusts of 68 m.p.h. were recorded. Snow drifted to three feet in some areas. At least 30 schools were closed in western New York.

Northern Midwest areas also had fresh snowfalls ranging from one to three inches.

Temperatures dropped sharply in many Midwest areas which had reported near-record high readings Tuesday. Chicago's weather changed in 24 hours from a sunny 71 Tuesday to a chilly, windy 17 last night. Wind gusts of 60 m.p.h. were reported and full gale warnings were posted for Lake Michigan. Oklahoma City's plunge was from 77 to 16 degrees.

The freezing line extended from western New York southward through central Tennessee, into northern Texas, across northern Arizona and thence northwest to the central Oregon coast.

Egypt Claimed Rejecting U.N.

Israel Says Cairo Shuns Truce Proposal

JERUSALEM (AP)—Sources close to the Israeli government said today Egypt has rejected U. N. proposals for easing tension around the El Auja demilitarized zone.

Israel has not yet given a formal reply to the proposals made early this month by U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold but a spokesman last week said the Israeli government would support them.

Tension in the demilitarized zone along the Negev-Sinai desert border area flared two weeks ago into the bloodiest fighting since the end of the Palestine War.

Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, U.N. chief truce supervisor, returned from Cairo early this week but made no announcement on the outcome of his talks with Egyptian leaders.

Details of the U. N. proposals never have been announced.

In Washington yesterday, Israel asked formally for arms from the United States at cut-rate prices and on easy credit terms.

* * *

AMBASSADOR Abba Eban told the State Department Israel has a 'sense of alarming vulnerability" as a result of Egyptian purchases of Communist arms and urgently needs defense weapons.

Later Egyptian Ambassador Ahmed Hussein went to the State Department and warned that if the United States sends arms to Israel the Arab world will be convinced "the United States does not want our friendship."

Hussein also said Egypt "may be compelled" to make more arms deals with the Communists.

Israel is eligible to receive U.S. miltary equipment under the 1949 Mutual Defense Assistance Act. But the specified terms, to which Israel agreed in 1952, are cash on the barrelhead.

Steel Firms Get Warning On Merger

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Atty. Gen. Brownell said today he is prepared to take the Bethlehem Steel Co. and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. into court promptly if they should sign a merger agreement in the face of his disapproval.

Brownell discussed the Bethlehem-Youngstown situation in a speech in which he told the national Industrial Conference Board:

"Stopping steel mergers now seems the best chance to avoid the troublesome problem of undue concentration which the Clayton antitrust Act seeks to prevent."

Last year Brownell rendered a legal opinion rejecting the merger plans of Bethlehem and Youngstown, which rank among the top 10 firms in the steel industry.

Again rejecting Bethlehem-Youngstown arguments that their consolidation would strengthen the competitive picture in relation to the U. S. Steel Corp., the attorney general said today:

"Not only would this proposed merger eliminate competition between Bethlehem and Youngstown but equally important, it would increase concentration in the hands of two companies already industry leaders, and thus widen the competitive spread between the merged companies and their smaller rivals."

"Many months ago," Brownell said, "we assured those companies' lawyers that should their clients go ahead with the merger, we would take every step to bring the case to prompt trial."

Russia Impresses Burmese Premier

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—U Nu, the Burmese premier, said today his Moscow visit has convinced him of Russia's "genuine desire for world peace."

He told a news conference that among the "many impressions" he brought home was the faith of Soviet leaders in the future of their country, their keenness for cultural and scientific development and their immense industrialization program.

Editors Predict Stevenson, Nixon To Be '56 Candidates

COLORADO SPRINGS (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Adlai E. Stevenson are the leading candidates for the 1956 presidential nominations in the view of most delegates attending the Associated Press Managing Editors Assn. convention here.

By a ratio of almost a 4-1, newsmen from all sections of the country predicted President Eisenhower will not seek reelection.

They see the farm problem and foreign policy as the two issues which will figure most heavily in the 1956 campaign.

These are the highlights of a poll of the editors taken at the meeting and tabulated today. They were asked in a written questionnaire whether they believed President Eisenhower will run; if not, whom do they consider the three persons most likely to win the Republican presidential nomination; whom do they consider the three most likely to win the Democratic nomination; and what they think the major issues will be.

* * *

ONLY 39 Of the 186 Newsmen expressed belief Eisenhower will be a candidate again; 147 thought he won't.

The editors voted Chief Justice Earl Warren of the United States the most probable rival of Nixon for the GOP nomination.

Of the editors participating in the poll, 86 listed Nixon as most probable Republican presidential nominee while 77 others list Warren.

Nixon received 61 votes as the second most likely candidate and Warren polled 39.

The vote for Stevenson on the Democratic side was overwhelming. He was listed by 156 editors. Next was Gov. Averell Harriman of New York. He polled 14 votes.

Harriman got 101 votes as the second most likely choice.

Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) far outdistanced all others as the third most likely candidate with 74 votes. He also had eight first-place votes and 39 second-place.

McCarren Security Law Faces Test

WASHINGTON (AP)—The five-year old McCarran internal security law, designed to control subversive organizations, faced its first Supreme Court test today in an appeal by the U. S. Communist party.

The party challenged the constitutionality of the act, under which it has been ordered to register as a puppet of the Soviet Union.

The issue went before the high court on a Communist appeal from a 2-1 decision by the U. S. Court of Appeals here that the law is valid.

N-S Turnpike Revenues Eyed

Toledo Spur Studied As To Feasibility

COLUMBUS (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche said today a preliminary report estimated that total revenues on a proposed Cincinnati-Conneaut turnpike with a Toledo spur would aggregate $29,123,000 in 1961.

Operating cost for that year was figured at six million dollars, making $23,123,000 available to make bond interest payments.

Neither Gov. Lausche nor Highway Director S. O. Linzell, ex-officio member of the Ohio Turnpike Commission, said whether the preliminary report indicated feasibility of the 400-mile project including a controversial Toledo spur.

Although officials were silent on persistent reports that construction of a Toledo spur is not feasible, figures released by Linzell showed the main section of the North-South turnpike represented 80 per cent of the entire project cost and would produce 93 per cent of the estimated gross revenue.

The governor's report said:

* * *

"ASSUMING that the cost of financing will be similar to that which prevailed in the financing of turnpike No. 1, calculations show that at an interest rate of 3¼ per cent on the full project, including the Toledo spur, in 1961 the revenues collected would be 1.21 times interest requirements.

"Omitting the Toledo spur and building the main line only the coverage would be 1.46. If only that portion of the turnpike running from Cincinnati northward to U. S. 40 at a point between Summerford and Brighton (in the Dayton-Springfield area), and also that portion of the main line running from the Pennsylvania border to turnpike No. 1 in Summit County, the coverage would be 2.07."

Turnpike officials say 1.5 is feasibility.

3 More American Missionaries Get Freedom In China

LONDON (AP)—Red China ordered today the release and deportation of three imprisoned Americans, Peiping radio said.

A broadcast, heard here, identified the Americans as Mrs. Homer V. Bradshaw, Marcellus White and Justin Garvey.

Mrs. Bradshaw was imprisoned with her husband in March 1951. Dr. Bradshaw, a member of the Third Presbyterian Church of Pittsburgh, and his wife both were medical missionaries.

The Rev. Marcellus White, 46, of Waltham, Mass., was serving as a Passionist missionary when he was jailed in February 1952.

The Rev. Justin Garvey, 40, of Union City, N. J., was sent to China by the Passionist order in 1946 to serve as a missionary. He was arrested in December 1951.

Many Republicans Said Out Of Step

NEW YORK (AP) — Republican Gov. Fred Hall of Kansas says many Republicans are "out of step with the President and with the people who voted for the Republican party in 1952."

"The more conservative Republicans," he said, "are suffering from a great delusion—the idea that there is in the world, particularly in the United States, a sort of trend toward socialism. 'Creeping socialism' they call it.

"To them," he continued, "the words 'progressivism,' 'liberalism' and 'socialism' are synonymous."

Morocco Sultan Back In Power

RABAT, French Morocco (AP)—Sultan Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef settled to work today on a home rule agreement between France and his North African protectorate.

The 41-year-old Sultan returned to Morocco yesterday after two years in exile and said he hoped to form a government soon that would negotiate a home rule pact.

Crippled Fugitive Surrenders Self

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A repentant fugitive hitchhiked from Montana on crutches to give himself up to police yesterday on a 10-year-old bad check charge. The prosecutor agreed to dismiss the charge.

Police said the 47-year-old man, painfully crippled by arthritis, seeks to re-establish himself here.

He was also wanted for breaking parole, but officers have recommended that it be extended.

Police said a warrant for his arrest on the check charge has lapsed and that checks needed for evidence have been lost.

Drunk Drivers Given Choice Of Jail Dates

Two motorists, found guilty in city court of drunk driving, have been permitted to decide the dates on which they are to serve their jail terms.

Lawrence Willard, 56, of Ashville, will serve two of his three days Friday and Saturday and then return the following Friday. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Carl White.

George L. Jacobs, 36, of Circleville Route 1, will serve his time Nov. 25-28. He was arrested by Officer Leroy Hawks following an accident on E. Main St. Wednesday involving three cars.

Each man was also given the "usual" fine of $100 and costs, and had his driving rights suspended for six months.

City court officials also corrected a report on John Teets, of Clarksburg, who had been found guilty of using fictitious license plates. Teets was not sentenced to a two-day jail term as had been reported by the court, but was fined $50 and costs.

'Enlightened' Businessman Is Defined

COLUMBUS (AP) — The president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce said today the enlightened businessman is a "steward of free enterprise who wants to help fill human needs."

Boyd Campbell of Jackson, Miss., in an address prepared for the 62nd annual convention of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, said there is more trust and confidence in private enterprise today.

The modern businessman, he said, "wants to create jobs, to give people greater purchasing power, to give them more satisfaction in their work, to give them a sense of belonging.

"But so many men of business seem to dwell on negativism as if we were possessed by the gloomy gremlins of disaster."

Campbell said Americans face problems, but should approach them "in the spirit of a confidence that abundance and prosperity should inspire."

He said, "This ought to be our shining opportunity to entrench an understanding, a loyalty, a devotion and individual dedication to the free enterprise system and to the institutions guaranteed by our constitution which made that system possible."

Big Argentine Labor Combine Is Taken Over

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Maj. Gen. Pedro Aramburu's new Argentine government, using tank-supported Marines and army troops, last night seized control of the General Confederation of Labor (CGT), backbone of the old Peron regime.

The government made its surprise move as a fizzling general strike by CGT kept key meat-packing plants closed and hit other important industries. Essential services were unaffected.

Simultaneously with the swoop by the troops on CGT headquarters here, police arrested about 100 leaders of the trainmen's unions who were preparing to call a railroad strike. Failure of the railroad workers to join the three-day-old stike was one of the main reasons why the walkout had missed its goal of paralyzing the nation.

The government appointed Navy Capt. Alberto Patron as administrator for CGT, which claims six million members. A government decree said all officials of the central organization and its member unions had been removed from their posts. A commission was named to investigate CGT. The government now controls CGT's funds.

The new labor minister, Raul Migone, said the old CGT under Peron was "an instrument of force and violence." He said, "We will begin, therefore, to destroy this organism of domination over the workers."

Adlai's Son OKs Bid For Nomination

HONOLULU (AP)—Army Pvt. Borden Stevenson says of his father Adlai's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination:

"I think he's by far the finest candidate and I'm solidly behind him."

Borden's tune was different last August when he expressed hope his father wouldn't run because "I'd rather not see father go through that ordeal."

Borden explained his change of mind:

"Now that he's running I've completely revised my thinking."

Ike Aides Studying Dem Highway Plan

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Secretary of Commerce Weeks said today after a conference with President Eisenhower that administration officials are backing away from a bond-financed federal highway program in favor of a pay-as-you-go system.

The pay-as-you-go approach was favored by the Democrats who blocked Eisenhower's plan for a $25 billion program, to be financed by borrowing, at the last session of Congress. Weeks did not report the President's current personal views on the question.

Turkeys play an important part in our American history.

Wild turkey was eaten by American Indians as early as 1000 A. D. The Pilgrims brought domesticated turkeys with them to America. Our forefathers "featured" turkey when they gave thanks for a bountiful harvest.

But in the past 40 years turkey has changed. It is no longer just a holiday bird. Due to continuous developments in production and marketing, any day in the year may now be turkey day.

These vast strides in the turkey industry account for the plump, meaty, full-flavored turkey of today. The popularity of turkey meat is largely responsible for the great variety of available styles. Canned, frozen and even smoked turkey is now available.

* * *

DID YOU ever try smoked turkey steaks?

The modern turkey comes both smaller and larger than its ancestors. It is also meatier and more tender, plumper and more compact and has a larger proportion of breast meat. The large meat-type turkeys yield about two-thirds white meat and one-third dark.

Mid - November traditionally means special emphasis on turkey for the majority of food shoppers.

This year's turkey production has fallen off slightly from last year's above the average crop. Therefore Mr. and Mrs. Foodshopper's Thanksgiving turkey may cost slightly more. However, there will be plenty of turkey for everyone.

Aside from being downright good eating, turkey meat plays an important part in regular meals because of its outstanding nutritional value. It is a valuable source of high quality protein, essential for body maintenance and sturdy growth, as well as thimain, riboflavin, niacin, iron and other important minerals.

* * *

THE DARK meat contains more than twice as much riboflavin as the light meat; the light meat contains about twice as much niacin as the dark meat. Which do you like best, or need most?

When buying medium or heavy birds (12 pounds or over), allow one-half to three-fourths of a pound per serving. Allowing more than this will provide cooked turkey for another meal—a plan-over and not a left-over.

The actual number of servings depends on the quality of the bird, correct preparation and carving skill. A 6 to 8-pound turkey will usually make six to 10 servings; a 16 to 20-pound turkey, 32 to 40 servings.

The "stuffing" situation seems a continuous problem — especially the "when" and "how" angles. Research has revealed that turkey should not be stuffed in advance of roasting time. For "plan-over" turkey, the stuffing should be removed before refrigerating.

The "safety factor" should never be sacrificed for easier methods. According to an Ohio State University nutritionist, commercially stuffed frozen birds are good quality because they have been processed under laboratory conditions.

* * *

A HALF of a turkey can very satisfactorily be stuffed and roasted. Unstuffed turkeys require about five minutes less per pound cooking time. An 18 to 20-pound turkey roasted in the usual fashion requires six to seven and one-half hours for cooking at 325 F. When cooked in aluminum foil at 450 F, three and one-fourth to three and one-half hours is usually sufficient.

Two distinct advantages of the aluminum foil method are: the shortened cooking time, and that spattering of the oven is prevented.

So let's all think on these things as we set forth to shop for turkey and its accompaniment.

Remember that the high-quality turkey has a moist, pliable, waxy skin with a few pin feathers and no bruises or discolorations. It has a well distributed layer of fat under the skin.

Oysters, nuts, raisins, sausage, cooked cranberries, mushrooms and tart apples make interesting additions to dry or moist stuffings.

Plan the Thanksgiving dinner schedule so that the turkey is out of the oven 20 to 30 minutes before serving. The meat will be juicier and will carve easier.

Judge Urges OK To Trial Pictures

AKRON (AP) — A common pleas judge here says he believes newspaper photographers should be allowed to take pictures during trials.

Too many courts are "drawing their robes and cloaks about them," resenting criticism and knowledge of what they do, Judge Walter B. Wanamaker told the Akron CIO Newspaper guild.

Wanamaker criticized the Canons of Judicial Ethics of the American Bar Assn., especially Canon 35, against the taking of photos during court sessions. He said the people, not lawyers, should make the rules governing courts.

Longchamps, in Paris, is known for its horse races and fashion shows.

World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Geneva conference, a complete failure, proved only what was apparent before it began: both sides feel so powerful neither thinks it necessary—yet—to yield anything to the other.

At the meeting which ended Wednesday the West and Russia simply restated previous, frozen positions. There was no bargaining, no negotiating. Each side made propaganda for itself against the other.

After watching the four foreign ministers perform, this seems a fair conclusion: The West and Russia are determined to stay fully armed, to watch, maneuver, and try or hope for a break which will make the other yield ground.

How long will this go on? Probably for years. There is no reason and no evidence to think otherwise.

If this meeting served no other useful purpose, at least it put the finger on the "Geneva spirit" for what it was: a myth.

President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Bulganin, at their summit meeting last July in Geneva, expressed pious hopes for the future. The fact that they could talk on friendly terms was a big improvement over recent relations.

But saying "Hello" to a man is a lot different from being able to do business with him in a satisfactory way. The Eisenhower-Bulganin meeting could have no meaning unless it was translated into realty by deeds.

It was just about impossible to see how that could happen in the foreseeable future since the gap between the West and Russia—the profound difference in their aims and desires—was so wide.

It is easy to be partisan in appraising the performance of the two sides at the foreign ministers meeting. The judgement of the man-in-the-street — depending on whether he's in Washington, London, Paris or Moscow — will be based largely on his patriotism and prejudice.

If you had been an American at Geneva, watching Secretary of State Dulles, you no doubt would have thought his position just and reasonable since you would have been looking at it from the interest of the United States.

For example: He wants Germany united and linked in a military alliance with this country. That's life insurance against Russian expansion or attack.

If you had been a Russian at Geneva, watching Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, you would no doubt have given him full approval when he took a stand opposite Dulles. He wants Germany united but linked to Russia. That would have meant life insurance against new German militarism or Western attack.

Officials of each side will now tell their people the other side was to blame for the failure to reach any agreements at Geneva. The fact is that each side wants agreement all right—but on its own terms.

Hamilton County Chiefs OK O'Neill

CINCINNATI (AP)—The policy committee of the Hamilton County Republican Party today endorsed Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill for governor of Ohio.

Local Republican leaders said O'Neill's record as a state legislator and attorney general, along with his vote-getting ability, governed their choice.

C&O To Expand Freight Car Fleet

CLEVELAND (AP)—Chesapeake & Ohio Railway plans to add 6,000 more cars to its freight car fleet. The railroad said 4,500 coal hopper cars and 500 hopper cars would be built at its shops in Russell, Ky., and a thousand box cars would be made by an outside manufacturer.

The 6,000 cars, expected to cost around $45 million, will bring to 10,500 the number the railroad has added in the last year at a total cost of $83 million.

Banana Cake by CLABBER GIRL

Here's a new addition to your favorite recipe file. Based on the new all-purpose oil cake, it's flavor-fresh with that popular tropical fruit, the banana, quick to make, with prize winning velvety texture due in part to Clabber Girl Baking Powder.

Flavor Fresh...

BANANA CAKE

Yield: 2—9-inch layers

2½ cups sifted cake flour	1¼ cups mashed bananas
2½ teaspoons Clabber Girl Baking Powder	½ cup milk
1 teaspoon salt	2 eggs
½ cup all-purpose oil	1½ cups sugar

Sift together flour, Baking Powder, and salt. Add oil, bananas, and milk. Beat until the mixture forms a very stiff batter. In a separate bowl, beat eggs until thick and foamy. Gradually add sugar and beat until very well blended. Fold egg-sugar mixture into first batter. Pour into 2 greased and floured 9 x 1½-inch round layer cake pans. Bake in a 375° F. (moderate) oven about 30 minutes. Cool before frosting with Seven Minute Frosting and walnut meats.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Geneva conference, a complete failure, proved only what was apparent before it began: both sides feel so powerful neither thinks it necessary—yet—to yield anything to the other.

At the meeting which ended Wednesday the West and Russia simply restated previous, frozen positions. There was no bargaining, no negotiating. Each side made propaganda for itself against the other.

After watching the four foreign ministers perform, this seems a fair conclusion: The West and Russia are determined to stay fully armed, to watch, maneuver, and try or hope for a break which will make the other yield ground.

How long will this go on? Probably for years. There is no reason and no evidence to think otherwise.

If this meeting served no other useful purpose, at least it put the finger on the "Geneva spirit" for what it was: a myth.

President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Bulganin, at their summit meeting last July in Geneva, expressed pious hopes for the future. The fact that they could talk on friendly terms was a big improvement over recent relations.

But saying "Hello" to a man is a lot different from being able to do business with him in a satisfactory way. The Eisenhower-Bulganin meeting could have no meaning unless it was translated into realty by deeds.

It was just about impossible to see how that could happen in the foreseeable future since the gap between the West and Russia—the profound difference in their aims and desires—was so wide.

It is easy to be partisan in appraising the performance of the two sides at the foreign ministers meeting. The judgement of the man-in-the-street — depending on whether he's in Washington, London, Paris or Moscow — will be based largely on his patriotism and prejudice.

If you had been an American at Geneva, watching Secretary of State Dulles, you no doubt would have thought his position just and reasonable since you would have been looking at it from the interest of the United States.

For example: He wants Germany united and linked in a military alliance with this country. That's life insurance against Russian expansion or attack.

If you had been a Russian at Geneva, watching Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, you would no doubt have given him full approval when he took a stand opposite Dulles. He wants Germany united but linked to Russia. That would have meant life insurance against new German militarism or Western attack.

Officials of each side will now tell their people the other side was to blame for the failure to reach any agreements at Geneva. The fact is that each side wants agreement all right—but on its own terms.

What Are Farmer's Troubles?

Demands Rising For Change In Nation's Ag Programs

Editor's Note: Following is the fourth in a series of five articles telling the reaction to the nation's farmers on the present administration's farmer - assistance programs.

By OVID A. MARTIN
Associated Press Farm Reporter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Demands are rising from farmers that government farm programs be refashioned to encourage — and compensate — them for producing better quality food and fiber crops.

Recent hearings held by the Senate Agriculture Committee on the problem of declining farm income showed that many producers now realize that much of the responsibility for their low prices should be placed on overproduction of poor quality products.

Markets take the better quality commodities, leaving the poorer grades to pile up in government surplus stocks, where they overhang markets and depress prices.

In many areas witnesses testified that present farm programs often fail to take quality into account in offering price support aid or allotting production shares.

Farmers in Kansas, the nation's No. 1 wheat state, said they think more than half the government's billion-bushel stock of wheat is unfit for human consumption. They want it dumped for livestock feed.

Under the price support and crop control programs, wheat and other crops have been dealt with on a fairly uniform basis, regardless of quality.

Proposals were advanced that growers be offered 90 to 100 per cent of parity on good quality wheat used for food. Wheat unsuitable for food would be supported at 50 to 60 per cent of parity. (Parity is the price goal of federal farm programs.)

Advocates said this would force low-quality wheat growers out of business.

Under this year's program, for instance, all wheat is being supported at 82.5 per cent of parity, with slight premiums for quality grain and slight discounts for poorer grades.

Hearings in Southern and Far Western cotton-growing states brought out pleas for quality provisions in programs for cotton. Much of the government's surplus cotton is known to be of lower grades.

The hog farmer — who has been having his share of price troubles recently — is beginning to lay more stress on the production of "meat-type" rather than "lard or fat-type" hogs.

There is a realization that consumers prefer pork with little fat on it. Yet, the bulk of the hogs being produced are of a type that puts a large amount of fat on the carcass rather than lean meat.

Producers said that if markets offered a higher premium on lean-type hogs, farmers would be encouraged to produce more of them and fewer of the fat-type animals.

Tomorrow: The "soil bank" plan.

CHESTY PULLER RETIRES

Marine Corps Loses Colorful Fighter

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
Central Press Association Correspondent

Major-General Puller

WASHINGTON—"Chesty" Puller, possibly the fightingest Leatherneck of them all, has retired. He stepped down from the ranks of the Marine Corps after 36 years of colorful service, the recipient of many honors from his country, and with the affection of thousands of Marines.

Chesty, more formally known as Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Puller, is now 55. He joined the Marines in August, 1918, after graduating from Virginia Military institute. He has been wounded seven times and received five Navy Crosses for heroism.

The barrel-chested, roaring veteran of battle in Nicaragua, the Pacific an' Korea, is known wherever Marines get together and talk. He was one brass hat who didn't put on airs. He gave brass hat superiors their due, and no more. He looked after his men, expected them to do their best when the going got rough, and they did.

One of the stories they tell about Puller concerns the Korean War. He led his Marines out of Chosin Reservoir when the Chinese Communists were closing in on the United Nations forces.

• • •

ONE DAY, while manning an observation post at the front, an aide informed him that Gen. Douglas MacArthur had arrived nearby with his staff.

Puller, busy watching the fighting below him, barked, "Tell General MacArthur my command post is up here." And there he remained while the supreme Allied commander marched up the hill to confer with him.

Another story Marines like to recall concerned Gen. Omar Bradley and an incident which took place in the 1920s. Bradley was then a captain serving as an instructor at the Fort Benning Infantry school.

Puller was a young lieutenant attending the school and ran into the ribbing of Captain Bradley, who commented on the small size of the Marine Corps.

• • •

"WHY DID the Marines bother to send you to our school, Lieutenant Puller?" asked Bradley. "You're never going to command anything bigger than a platoon."

"Why, Captain Bradley," retorted Puller, "now that I think of it, I don't know why in the hell Marines bother to come to your Army schools!"

Puller first became acquainted with the Japanese in 1932 when they invaded Shanghai. As the Japanese attacked the Chinese, Puller manned machine guns on the bridge leading to the International Settlement.

"Tell the Japs," the doughty Marine is reported to have stated, "that the first ones to cross here will be dead ones."

• • •

DURING WORLD WAR II, after a particularly bitter battle in New Britain, Chesty and his Marines were sent to Pavuvu to recuperate. Puller found out that officers and non-coms had mattress pads, while those in the ranks had none.

Puller, then a colonel, spent the next three hours confiscating the mattress pads. "Until everybody gets one, nobody gets one," he ordered.

Chesty became a controversial figure upon his return to the States from Korea in May, 1951. He was reported to have stated in San Francisco that American troops were getting soft on too much milk and USO and that beer and whiskey would help them more.

Puller will spend his retirement at his family home in Saluda, Va., with his wife and daughter. He leaves behind him a legend which will undoubtedly grow with the years.

SAD TIMES have struck the Paul Miller family, shown in their home in Los Angeles. The Millers were counterspies for the FBI in the Communist party, but now, they say, Communist propaganda has turned friends and neighbors against them. "We did only good for our country," Miller said. Children are Paul, Jr., and Betsy Lou, 5. (International Soundphoto)

Schools Given Blame For GI Turn To Reds

CLEVELAND (AP)—A noted educator held last night that American schools are responsible for the desertion to Communism by brainwashed American prisoners of the Red Chinese.

Dr. Kenneth S. Colegrove, professor emeritus of political science at Northwestern University, said American schools have feared to conduct frank classroom discussion of Communism.

"You cannot combat anything you don't understand," he added.

Colegrove is preparing a high school textbook for publication next year by the Institute of Fiscal and Political Education which will provide an unbiased inquiry into Communism and measure its achievements against those of our Democracy.

Here to address a luncheon today, Dr. Colegrove said the institute was shocked to learn in a survey of American public school systems "that nowhere was there available any instruction on just what Communism is, nothing that would enable the pupil to make a comparative appriasal of our Democracy."

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The emphasis will be on turkeys in most of the nation's food stores this weekend.

Meat dealers figure that many housewives will be buying their Thanksgiving birds on Friday or Saturday, rather than early next week. It's generally agreed that they will cost more than they did a year ago—perhaps five or six cents a pound—because production is down around 4 per cent. The National Turkey Federation stresses, however, that there will be ample supplies of plump birds.

For the forthcoming weekend, stores will have a good selection of worthwhile buys in meats. Prime rib prices will be down two to four cents a pound from a week ago in many instances. Sirloin steaks will be lower, too.

Legs of lamb and loins of pork are other favorite weekend selections, but will cost more than a week ago. Price advances of around six cents a pound will be fairly common on fryers.

The best vegetable buys include beets, cabbage, onions, potatoes, radishes and turnips. Also recommended by produce men are cauliflower, beans, cucumbers, pascal celery, spinach, escarole, endive, eggplant, yams and artichokes.

Coffee prices are due to come down, following cuts in wholesale prices of around four cents a pound in the last week by leading roasters.

Cincy Cleans Up After Big Blow

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Greater Cincinnati area, including parts of northern Kentucky, today was pulling itself from under thunder, hail and wind storms which lashed out early yesterday.

Several persons reported minor injuries. All schools in Ludlow, Ky. were closed yesterday when 125 windows were broken by hail.

Temperatures in this area dropped from the 60s to near 20 degrees

Recent hearings held by the Senate Agriculture Committee on the problem of declining farm income showed that many producers now realize that much of the responsibility for their low prices should be placed on overproduction of poor quality products.

Markets take the better quality commodities, leaving the poorer grades to pile up in government surplus stocks, where they overhang markets and depress prices.

In many areas witnesses testified that present farm programs often fail to take quality into account in offering price support aid or allotting production shares.

Farmers in Kansas, the nation's No. 1 wheat state, said they think more than half the government's billion-bushel stock of wheat is unfit for human consumption. They want it dumped for livestock feed.

Under the price support and crop control programs, wheat and other crops have been dealt with on a fairly uniform basis, regardless of quality.

Proposals were advanced that growers be offered 90 to 100 per cent of parity on good quality wheat used for food. Wheat unsuitable for food would be supported at 50 to 60 per cent of parity. (Parity is the price goal of federal farm programs.)

Advocates said this would force low-quality wheat growers out of business.

Under this year's program, for instance, all wheat is being supported at 82.5 per cent of parity, with slight premiums for quality grain and slight discounts for poorer grades.

Hearings in Southern and Far Western cotton-growing states brought out pleas for quality provisions in programs for cotton. Much of the government's surplus cotton is known to be of lower grades.

The hog farmer — who has been having his share of price troubles recently — is beginning to lay more stress on the production of "meat-type" rather than "lard or fat-type" hogs.

There is a realization that consumers prefer pork with little fat on it. Yet, the bulk of the hogs being produced are of a type that puts a large amount of fat on the carcass rather than lean meat.

Producers said that if markets offered a higher premium on lean-type hogs, farmers would be encouraged to produce more of them and fewer of the fat-type animals.

CHESTY PULLER RETIRES

Marine Corps Loses Colorful Fighter

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
Central Press Association Correspondent

Major-General Puller

WASHINGTON—"Chesty" Puller, possibly the fightingest Leatherneck of them all, has retired. He stepped down from the ranks of the Marine Corps after 36 years of colorful service, the recipient of many honors from his country, and with the affection of thousands of Marines.

Chesty, more formally known as Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Puller, is now 55. He joined the Marines in August, 1918, after graduating from Virginia Military institute. He has been wounded seven times and received five Navy Crosses for heroism.

The barrel-chested, roaring veteran of battle in Nicaragua, the Pacific an' Korea, is known wherever Marines get together and talk. He was one brass hat who didn't put on airs. He gave brass hat superiors their due, and no more. He looked after his men, expected them to do their best when the going got rough, and they did.

One of the stories they tell about Puller concerns the Korean War. He led his Marines out of Chosin Reservoir when the Chinese Communists were closing in on the United Nations forces.

• • •

ONE DAY, while manning an observation post at the front, an aide informed him that Gen. Douglas MacArthur had arrived nearby with his staff.

Puller, busy watching the fighting below him, barked, "Tell General MacArthur my command post is up here." And there he remained while the supreme Allied commander marched up the hill to confer with him.

Another story Marines like to recall concerned Gen. Omar Bradley and an incident which took place in the 1920s. Bradley was then a captain serving as an instructor at the Fort Benning Infantry school.

Puller was a young lieutenant attending the school and ran into the ribbing of Captain Bradley, who commented on the small size of the Marine Corps.

• • •

"WHY DID the Marines bother to send you to our school, Lieutenant Puller?" asked Bradley. "You're never going to command anything bigger than a platoon."

"Why, Captain Bradley," retorted Puller, "now that I think of it, I don't know why in the hell Marines bother to come to your Army schools!"

Puller first became acquainted with the Japanese in 1932 when they invaded Shanghai. As the Japanese attacked the Chinese, Puller manned machine guns on the bridge leading to the International Settlement.

"Tell the Japs," the doughty Marine is reported to have stated, "that the first ones to cross here will be dead ones."

• • •

DURING WORLD WAR II, after a particularly bitter battle in New Britain, Chesty and his Marines were sent to Pavuvu to recuperate. Puller found out that officers and non-coms had mattress pads, while those in the ranks had none.

Puller, then a colonel, spent the next three hours confiscating the mattress pads. "Until everybody gets one, nobody gets one," he ordered.

Chesty became a controversial figure upon his return to the States from Korea in May, 1951. He was reported to have stated in San Francisco that American troops were getting soft on too much milk and USO and that beer and whiskey would help them more.

Puller will spend his retirement at his family home in Saluda, Va., with his wife and daughter. He leaves behind him a legend which will undoubtedly grow with the years.

SAD TIMES have struck the Paul Miller family, shown in their home in Los Angeles. The Millers were counterspies for the FBI in the Communist party, but now, they say, Communist propaganda has turned friends and neighbors against them. "We did only good for our country," Miller said. Children are Paul, Jr., and Betsy Lou, 5. (International Soundphoto)

Schools Given Blame For GI Turn To Reds

CLEVELAND (AP)—A noted educator held last night that American schools are responsible for the desertion to Communism by brainwashed American prisoners of the Red Chinese.

Dr. Kenneth S. Colegrove, professor emeritus of political science at Northwestern University, said American schools have feared to conduct frank classroom discussion of Communism.

"You cannot combat anything you don't understand," he added.

Colegrove is preparing a high school textbook for publication next year by the Institute of Fiscal and Political Education which will provide an unbiased inquiry into Communism and measure its achievements against those of our Democracy.

Here to address a luncheon today, Dr. Colegrove said the institute was shocked to learn in a survey of American public school systems "that nowhere was there available any instruction on just what Communism is, nothing that would enable the pupil to make a comparative appriasal of our Democracy."

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The emphasis will be on turkeys in most of the nation's food stores this weekend.

Meat dealers figure that many housewives will be buying their Thanksgiving birds on Friday or Saturday, rather than early next week. It's generally agreed that they will cost more than they did a year ago—perhaps five or six cents a pound—because production is down around 4 per cent. The National Turkey Federation stresses, however, that there will be ample supplies of plump birds.

For the forthcoming weekend, stores will have a good selection of worthwhile buys in meats. Prime rib prices will be down two to four cents a pound from a week ago in many instances. Sirloin steaks will be lower, too.

Legs of lamb and loins of pork are other favorite weekend selections, but will cost more than a week ago. Price advances of around six cents a pound will be fairly common on fryers.

The best vegetable buys include beets, cabbage, onions, potatoes, radishes and turnips. Also recommended by produce men are cauiflower, beans, cucumbers, pascal celery, spinach, escarole, endive, eggplant, yams and artichokes.

Coffee prices are due to come down, following cuts in wholesale prices of around four cents a pound in the last week by leading roasters.

Cincy Cleans Up After Big Blow

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Greater Cincinnati area, including parts of northern Kentucky, today was pulling itself from under thunder, hail and wind storms which lashed out early yesterday.

Several persons reported minor injuries. All schools in Ludlow, Ky. were closed yesterday when 125 windows were broken by hail.

Temperatures in this area dropped from the 60s to near 20 degrees

UNIONS AND POLITICS

DAVE BECK, president of the AFL Teamsters union, has said that he voted for President Eisenhower in 1952 and Thomas Dewey in 1948.

This was not real news for Beck was known to have Republican leanings in the past and had publicly endorsed Republican candidates.

However, his testimony for the GOP probably will be welcomed by Republican leaders for its influence on organized labor, a field where the GOP has lacked majority support.

Before the Republicans welcome Beck into their arms too openly, though, they might recall the unsavory character of strikes involving the Teamsters.

Time after time and in place after place where Teamsters have been on strike, violence has broken out. Bombings, beatings, destruction of property, are part of many Teamsters' strikes. The union always blames it on outsiders trying to pin the blame on the Union. But this is rather transparent.

Perhaps it will be better for politicians to remember that no labor leader recently has been able to deliver the union vote in any substantial, overwhelming manner. Even at the depth of the depression, studies showed that 30 per cent of union members voted Republican. And in 1952 President Eisenhower got a majority of union votes despite labor officials' endorsement of Stevenson.

The American voter, in spite of union connections, still is an independent thinker. This is as it should be.

INVENTORY CONTROLS

IMMENSITY of the figures in the most recent Hoover Commission report again emphasize the long-standing need for a running inventory of government property. Warehoused military items worth $66 billion were found by investigators. Other federal holdings of a personal property nature were estimated at $48.5 billions.

Real property, exclusive of the public domain, was valued at $40 billion. Yet, after 40 years of effort, the government has no ready catalog of its holdings.

Although the 82nd Congress practically directed that such a catalog be compiled, and Congress repeatedly has appropriated funds for the printing of such a volume, nothing now seems likely to be available until some time next year.

Without such a central listing, no department can learn, without weeks of delay, whether what it needs is available in the government's attic, or whether it must be bought. Under such conditions, no bureaucrat hestiates. The investigators checked 12 items listed as surplus, found the government still buying eight.

Only the government could support such foolishness, and then only if taxes were at their present confiscatory level. Continued buying at such cross purposes adds to the already vast surplus created by obsolescence. As a result, the government yearly offers more than $2 billion in surplus property for sale. In such sales the government realizes 7 per cent or less on the dollar.

Formerly there was great rejoicing over a record crop, but now the depressing thought intrudes that this calls for more tax subsidies.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

It is a pity that the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights ceased investigating religious activities in this country. What concerned them was the First Amendment to the Constitution which includes the clause: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof. . ."

If the investigation had proceeded, it could not have failed to prove that many translate the word, establishment, not as a separation of Church and State, but as a rejection of God as a fact in our national life. It was never intended by those who wrote the Constitution that there should be such a rejection.

The word, establishment, in its ecclesiastical sense, means the recognition of a particular church as an institution of the state. State churches exist in Great Britain, Soviet Russia, Greece, the Arab and many other countries. In such places the government finances a particular church and the church has special rights and functions in relation to the state. The active head of the British Church, for instance, is a state official; the titular head is the sovereign.

Such a relationship has never existed in the United States and is forbidden by the Constitution but that has nothing to do with the teaching or pursuit of religion as a fundamental of American civilization. The Hennings Committee, in its questionnaire to many Americans, asks several questions. Among them:

"2. (a) Do you regard the phrase 'make no law respecting an establishment of religion' as a prohibition against any direct or indirect government aid to churches or religious sects?

Yes No

"(b) Or do you regard the language as banning preferential treatment of any particular church or religious sect while permitting government aid to religion generally or to the various churches and sects on a non-discriminatory basis?

Yes No"

These questions cannot be answered "yes" or "no," without asking what is meant by the words, "direct or indirect government aid, and what precisely is government aid. For instance, does the question mean that American children who attend parochial schools are to be deprived of benefits that other American children receive? Those beneftis go neither to a church nor a religious sect; they go to the child.

It is in my opinion unsound to beg this question; it ought to be dealt with head on. Any American child ought to get a bus ride or a drink of orange juice if any other child gets these benefits, for which all parents pay taxes. Why not argue this out in the open?

The third question goes to the fundamentals of American civilization. It reads:

"3. Do you believe the free exercise of religion protects atheists in propagating a disbelief in religion? Yes No"

Why is such a question asked? Who has interfered with the atheists? So far as I have observed the atheists enjoy full freedom, while those who believe in God suffer from restrictions. For instance, in many cities, school auditoriums are closed to religious discussions and ceremonies but are open to discussions of anti-religious subjects, as, for instance, Marxism.

In New York City, an order has just been issued forbidding any but an historical discussion of the Christian Christmas or the Jewish Hannukah, although it has long been traditional to celebrate the former and more recently the latter by such children as want to.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

LOIS lay with closed eyes, listening to the leaves stirring with the breeze, feeling the sun warm on her face. Sick at heart. How could I have been such a fool, she thought; believing he was in love with me. Responding like a naive girl. And he's trying to sidetrack me. But what an unforgivable way to silence me. How could he?

She drifted into an uneasy sleep. Somewhere a door opened and closed. High heels clicked over the floor. Carol's voice said, "You here, darling? Where's Mrs. Fleming?"

"Asleep on the terrace. I'm typing Ethel's advertisement."

"How kind you are! I couldn't get along without you, Shandy."

Something in the magnolia soft voice made Lois open her eyes. I must let them know I am awake, she thought. I'm not supposed to hear this.

Shandy hit a few more keys on the typewriter and pulled out the page. "That's the lot. I thought I'd put them in all the New York papers."

"Thank you. I've said that to you so long, so often. Just thank you. But at last you know I'll be able to thank you better now, differently—after all these years you've waited."

"Steady, Carol," Shandy said quickly, warningly.

"Anyhow," she ignored the interruption, "anyhow, darling, something rather—frightening has happened. We'd better not say anything, just at present."

"Say anything about what?"

Carol's voice hardened imperceptibly. "About the fact that we are going to marry."

Lois stumbled to her feet. I've got to stop them, she thought, appalled.

It was already too late. Shandy was standing at the Dutch door and his face was horror-struck when he saw that she was awake.

Lois turned without a word and crossed the terrace. Shandy had left the gate unlocked when he came in. She went through and closed it behind her. She walked blindly, eager only to put as much distance as possible between her and the man and woman in Roger's cottage. Poor Roger, she thought in a kind of outrage, and was surprised at her own partisanship for the man who would not stay dead. Poor Roger.

It was her stricken pity for him that led her to Albert Kibbee's cottage. There, at least, she would find a loyalty that had never wavered; a loyalty touched with hysteria, perhaps, but one on which Roger could have relied.

The door was open and Bessie sat crumpled in a chair, her eyes empty as she stared at the wall. Over night the precarious balance between middle age and old age had been altered. Bessie's face sagged, the very texture of her skin seemed to have changed. The sturdy body had collapsed on itself.

Before Lois could turn away, Bessie looked up. Her voice, like her eyes, was dulled, but habit asserted itself. "Come in, Mrs. Fleming." She got to her feet and bustled around, straightening an ornament that had already been arranged with military precision.

"Am I disturbing you?"

Bessie shook her head. "I was just sitting here," she said, as though surprised by her own inactivity. "Let me make you some tea. You could take a cup to Albert." She lifted her apron to wipe away an imaginary spot of dust from a bowl on the table. "He won't let me in. Maybe he'd take it from you." She stood looking aimlessly at Lois, a woman ill at ease when she was not busy but with her occupation momentarily stripped from her.

"Clyde's gone off," she said. "He's been away all morning. He can't get over frightening Paula. I could shake that girl though I realize she was too sick to know what she was doing. But Clyde can't seem to understand that's all there was to it. He thinks no one likes him, not even Albert." She added flatly, "It's not good for him. You're lucky not to have anyone, Mrs. Fleming, I can tell you. It's terrible to love people and not be able to help them. It's just plain awful."

When the tea had been prepared, accompanied by fragrant cinnamon toast, Lois took the tray Bessie had fixed with anxious care and tapped at Albert's door.

"Who is it?" inquired the reedy voice.

"Lois Fleming." When he had unlocked the door she set the tea tray on a table beside his bed, filled a cup for him and stood hesitating.

He ignored the tea. "Sit down," he said. There was none of the eagerness she had seen in him on her arrival. "Mrs. Fleming," he demanded, ignoring the tea, "why are you doing this?"

"Doing what?" she asked in honest surprise.

"Stirring things up. Doc was here yesterday when I had the attack. He told me that you are a troublemaker, trying to hurt Roger's reputation."

Lois was so angry for a moment that she could not speak. Then she said quietly, "I haven't the slightest intention of stirring things up, as Dr. Thomas says. But even if I did, it would be better than covering them up. There is no possible justification for the way he has behaved, either as a physician or a friend. He ought to lose his license for it. He knew as well as the rest of you, better than most of you, that Roger Brindle did not kill himself. For him to say so is a contemptible lie. That's what I call stirring things up, Mr. Kibbee. Leaving a scar on Roger Brindle's reputation. I came here to try to get a picture of the man and to give that picture to the people all over the country who loved him. All I have met with is evasions. Dr. Thomas is deliberately covering up the fact that his friend was murdered and at the same time attempting to make me believe that Mr. Brindle was responsible for his own death."

Albert sat bolt upright in bed. "But I thought," he said, shocked and bewildered, "Roger's heart failed. I don't understand any of this."

There was no indication that he was in danger from another collapse. He was alert, intent, ready for action. Perhaps, Lois thought, he would be better off if his wife would let him get up than if she continued to keep him penned in bed where he could do nothing but brood. True, he had no strength but he had the wiry kind of energy that often outlives the sturdy, athletic kind.

"I thought you knew," she said in apology. "I thought all of you knew. I am sure Mrs. Brindle does because she was so afraid to have me use the gas fireplace."

"Was that—what did it?"

She nodded.

A Fable: Minnows, Whales

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—An old man in a small boat by the fringe of a river bending to the sea was patiently netting minnows.

Time had made him a philosopher of sky and land and water.

A boy rowed up to him and said, "teach me to catch whales."

"Why?" asked the philosopher.

"My father, Angelo, is a tuna fisherman," explained the boy. 'But I do not wich to fish for the tuna. I want to catch the whale."

"I know your father, and I understand why he doesn't search for the whale," replied the philosopher. "But why did he send you to me?"

"I don't know," said the boy. "He only told me that if I couldn't be happy with tuna and must seek the whale I should go and take lessons perhaps from the minnow man. Can you help me?"

The boy's face was ecstatic.

"I know your father, the tuna fisherman, and I also know why he has never hunted the whale," said the philosopher, his cheeks flushing, "and I know why he sent you to me. But I will try to teach you."

The philosopher taught the boy how small fish run in schools, and how to net them. Then he taught him how fish get scarcer and rougher as they go to college, and how it takes an equal endurance and fortitude to match them. And then he told him the patience and strength and skill of arm—and the bravery—it required at that time to stalk and harpoon a whale.

Then he said he sent him forth:

"You have learned all I can teach you about what must be done. Nothing is left for you to do."

The boy, now grown to young manhood, left him. He sought and found the blowing whale.

Years later, in middle age, stumping on one leg, the boy came back to the philosopher, and sat in his boat and said half-reproachfully:

"I'm tired of hunting whales. You never searched for whales yourself, did you? Why not?"

And the old man answered placidly, "No. The nature of the minnow taught me all I needed to know. But some people have to dare the whale. Each must learn what his own nature requires him to learn in the only way he can find it out."

Gelatin Strengthens Brittle Fingernails

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

DO your fingernails split and peel easily? Then here's a tip—try some unflavored gelatin.

Splitting fingernails are a vexing problem for many women, especially housewives. For some time now, relatively little has been done by medical science to relieve brittle nails.

But tests conducted by two doctors in Bridgeport, Connecticut, show that unflavored gelatin apparently has great value in preventing nails from splitting and peeling.

Daily doses (7 grams) of this gelatin in a glass of water, fruit juice or milk halted the affliction in all but eight of 36 women who took part in the survey, according to Drs. Saul Rosenberg and Kurt A. Oster.

Of the eight who were not helped, three discontinued the treatments and the five others had other health problems.

Noted Improvement

While some women noted improvement after the first month, the test was carried out over a three month period, the approximate time required to grow new nails.

You can take your daily quota of gelatin in any of several ways. Empty the 7 gram envelope into three-fourths of a glass of water, tomato juice, orange juice or other juices, stir and drink.

If you want to take it in milk, mix the unflavored gelatin in one glass of whole milk, or mix it thoroughly with 3 to 6 tablespoons of instant nonfat dry milk in a glass, fill with cold water, stir and drink.

The gelatin will not dissolve if served cold, but the soft particles will be dispersed in the liquid.

Taken Hot

It can be taken hot in bouillon or broth. Empty an envelope of unflavored gelatin into one-fourth cup of cold water to soften. Then add 1 bouillon cube and three-fourths cup of boiling water. Stir until the gelatin is dissolved.

If you wish, you can substitute three-fourths of a cup of any very hot broth for the bouillon cube and hot water.

UNIONS AND POLITICS

DAVE BECK, president of the AFL Teamsters union, has said that he voted for President Eisenhower in 1952 and Thomas Dewey in 1948.

This was not real news for Beck was known to have Republican leanings in the past and had publicly endorsed Republican candidates.

However, his testimony for the GOP probably will be welcomed by Republican leaders for its influence on organized labor, a field where the GOP has lacked majority support.

Before the Republicans welcome Beck into their arms too openly, though, they might recall the unsavory character of strikes involving the Teamsters.

Time after time and in place after place where Teamsters have been on strike, violence has broken out. Bombings, beatings, destruction of property, are part of many Teamsters' strikes. The union always blames it on outsiders trying to pin the blame on the Union. But this is rather transparent.

Perhaps it will be better for politicians to remember that no labor leader recently has been able to deliver the union vote in any substantial, overwhelming manner. Even at the depth of the depression, studies showed that 30 per cent of union members voted Republican. And in 1952 President Eisenhower got a majority of union votes despite labor officials' endorsement of Stevenson.

The American voter, in spite of union connections, still is an independent thinker. This is as it should be.

INVENTORY CONTROLS

IMMENSITY of the figures in the most recent Hoover Commission report again emphasize the long-standing need for a running inventory of government property. Warehoused military items worth $66 billion were found by investigators. Other federal holdings of a personal property nature were estimated at $48.5 billions.

Real property, exclusive of the public domain, was valued at $40 billion. Yet, after 40 years of effort, the government has no ready catalog of its holdings.

Although the 82nd Congress practically directed that such a catalog be compiled, and Congress repeatedly has appropriated funds for the printing of such a volume, nothing now seems likely to be available until some time next year.

Without such a central listing, no department can learn, without weeks of delay, whether what it needs is available in the government's attic, or whether it must be bought. Under such conditions, no bureaucrat hestiates. The investigators checked 12 items listed as surplus, found the government still buying eight.

Only the government could support such foolishness, and then only if taxes were at their present confiscatory level. Continued buying at such cross purposes adds to the already vast surplus created by obsolescence. As a result, the government yearly offers more than $2 billion in surplus property for sale. In such sales the government realizes 7 per cent or less on the dollar.

Formerly there was great rejoicing over a record crop, but now the depressing thought intrudes that this calls for more tax subsidies.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

It is a pity that the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights ceased investigating religious activities in this country. What concerned them was the First Amendment to the Constitution which includes the clause: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof. . ."

If the investigation had proceeded, it could not have failed to prove that many translate the word, establishment, not as a separation of Church and State, but as a rejection of God as a fact in our national life. It was never intended by those who wrote the Constitution that there should be such a rejection.

The word, establishment, in its ecclesiastical sense, means the recognition of a particular church as an institution of the state. State churches exist in Great Britain, Soviet Russia, Greece, the Arab and many other countries. In such places the government finances a particular church and the church has special rights and functions in relation to the state. The active head of the British Church, for instance, is a state official; the titular head is the sovereign.

Such a relationship has never existed in the United States and is forbidden by the Constitution but that has nothing to do with the teaching or pursuit of religion as a fundamental of American civilization. The Hennings Committee, in its questionnaire to many Americans, asks several questions. Among them:

"2. (a) Do you regard the phrase 'make no law respecting an establishment of religion' as a prohibition against any direct or indirect government aid to churches or religious sects?

Yes No

"(b) Or do you regard the language as banning preferential treatment of any particular church or religious sect while permitting government aid to religion generally or to the various churches and sects on a non-discriminatory basis?

Yes No"

These questions cannot be answered "yes" or "no," without asking what is meant by the words, "direct or indirect government aid, and what precisely is government aid. For instance, does the question mean that American children who attend parochial schools are to be deprived of benefits that other American children receive? Those beneftis go neither to a church nor a religious sect; they go to the child.

It is in my opinion unsound to beg this question; it ought to be dealt with head on. Any American child ought to get a bus ride or a drink of orange juice if any other child gets these benefits, for which all parents pay taxes. Why not argue this out in the open?

The third question goes to the fundamentals of American civilization. It reads:

"3. Do you believe the free exercise of religion protects atheists in propagating a disbelief in religion? Yes No"

Why is such a question asked? Who has interfered with the atheists? So far as I have observed the atheists enjoy full freedom, while those who believe in God suffer from restrictions. For instance, in many cities, school auditoriums are closed to religious discussions and ceremonies but are open to discussions of anti-religious subjects, as, for instance, Marxism.

In New York City, an order has just been issued forbidding any but an historical discussion of the Christian Christmas or the Jewish Hannukah, although it has long been traditional to celebrate the former and more recently the latter by such children as want to.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

LOIS lay with closed eyes, listening to the leaves stirring with the breeze, feeling the sun warm on her face. Sick at heart. How could I have been such a fool, she thought; believing he was in love with me. Responding like a naive girl. And he's trying to sidetrack me. But what an unforgivable way to silence me. How could he?

She drifted into an uneasy sleep. Somewhere a door opened and closed. High heels clicked over the floor. Carol's voice said, "You here, darling? Where's Mrs. Fleming?"

"Asleep on the terrace. I'm typing Ethel's advertisement."

"How kind you are! I couldn't get along without you, Shandy."

Something in the magnolia soft voice made Lois open her eyes. I must let them know I am awake, she thought. I'm not supposed to hear this.

Shandy hit a few more keys on the typewriter and pulled out the page. "That's the lot. I thought I'd put them in all the New York papers."

"Thank you. I've said that to you so long, so often. Just thank you. But at last you know I'll be able to thank you better now, differently—after all these years you've waited."

"Steady, Carol," Shandy said quickly, warningly.

"Anyhow," she ignored the interruption, "anyhow, darling, something rather—frightening has happened. We'd better not say anything, just at present."

"Say anything about what?"

Carol's voice hardened imperceptibly. "About the fact that we are going to marry."

Lois stumbled to her feet. I've got to stop them, she thought, appalled.

It was already too late. Shandy was standing at the Dutch door and his face was horror-struck when he saw that she was awake.

Lois turned without a word and crossed the terrace. Shandy had left the gate unlocked when he came in. She went through and closed it behind her. She walked blindly, eager only to put as much distance as possible between her and the man and woman in Roger's cottage. Poor Roger, she thought in a kind of outrage, and was surprised at her own partisanship for the man who would not stay dead. Poor Roger.

It was her stricken pity for him that led her to Albert Kibbee's cottage. There, at least, she would find a loyalty that had never wavered; a loyalty touched with hysteria, perhaps, but one on which Roger could have relied.

The door was open and Bessie sat crumpled in a chair, her eyes empty as she stared at the wall. Over night the precarious balance between middle age and old age had been altered. Bessie's face sagged, the very texture of her skin seemed to have changed. The sturdy body had collapsed on itself.

Before Lois could turn away, Bessie looked up. Her voice, like her eyes, was dulled, but habit asserted itself. "Come in, Mrs. Fleming." She got to her feet and bustled around, straightening an ornament that had already been arranged with military precision.

"Am I disturbing you?"

Bessie shook her head. "I was just sitting here," she said, as though surprised by her own inactivity. "Let me make you some tea. You could take a cup to Albert." She lifted her apron to wipe away an imaginary spot of dust from a bowl on the table. "He won't let me in. Maybe he'd take it from you." She stood looking aimlessly at Lois, a woman ill at ease when she was not busy but with her occupation momentarily stripped from her.

"Clyde's gone off," she said. "He's been away all morning. He can't get over frightening Paula. I could shake that girl though I realize she was too sick to know what she was doing. But Clyde can't seem to understand that's all there was to it. He thinks no one likes him, not even Albert." She added flatly, "It's not good for him. You're lucky not to have anyone, Mrs. Fleming, I can tell you. It's terrible to love people and not be able to help them. It's just plain awful."

When the tea had been prepared, accompanied by fragrant cinnamon toast, Lois took the tray Bessie had fixed with anxious care and tapped at Albert's door.

"Who is it?" inquired the reedy voice.

"Lois Fleming." When he had unlocked the door she set the tea tray on a table beside his bed, filled a cup for him and stood hesitating.

He ignored the tea. "Sit down," he said. There was none of the eagerness she had seen in him on her arrival. "Mrs. Fleming," he demanded, ignoring the tea, "why are you doing this?"

"Doing what?" she asked in honest surprise.

"Stirring things up. Doc was here yesterday when I had the attack. He told me that you are a troublemaker, trying to hurt Roger's reputation."

Lois was so angry for a moment that she could not speak. Then she said quietly, "I haven't the slightest intention of stirring things up, as Dr. Thomas says. But even if I did, it would be better than covering them up. There is no possible justification for the way he has behaved, either as a physician or a friend. He ought to lose his license for it. He knew as well as the rest of you, better than most of you, that Roger Brindle did not kill himself. For him to say so is a contemptible lie. That's what I call stirring things up, Mr. Kibbee. Leaving a scar on Roger Brindle's reputation. I came here to try to get a picture of the man and to give that picture to the people all over the country who loved him. All I have met with is evasions. Dr. Thomas is deliberately covering up the fact that his friend was murdered and at the same time attempting to make me believe that Mr. Brindle was responsible for his own death."

Albert sat bolt upright in bed. "But I thought," he said, shocked and bewildered, "Roger's heart failed. I don't understand any of this."

There was no indication that he was in danger from another collapse. He was alert, intent, ready for action. Perhaps, Lois thought, he would be better off if his wife would let him get up than if she continued to keep him penned in bed where he could do nothing but brood. True, he had no strength but he had the wiry kind of energy that often outlives the sturdy, athletic kind.

"I thought you knew," she said in apology. "I thought all of you knew. I am sure Mrs. Brindle does because she was so afraid to have me use the gas fireplace."

"Was that—what did it?"

She nodded.

A Fable: Minnows, Whales

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—An old man in a small boat by the fringe of a river bending to the sea was patiently netting minnows.

Time had made him a philosopher of sky and land and water.

A boy rowed up to him and said, "teach me to catch whales."

"Why?" asked the philosopher.

"My father, Angelo, is a tuna fisherman," explained the boy. 'But I do not wich to fish for the tuna. I want to catch the whale."

"I know your father, and I understand why he doesn't search for the whale," replied the philosopher. "But why did he send you to me?"

Pickaway Chapter Of DAR Observes 29th Anniversary

Talk, Book Review Highlights Meeting

The Pickaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, celebrated its 29th anniversary at its November meeting Tuesday.

The group, which met in the home of Mrs. Leslie May, also heard a five-minute talk on national defense by Mrs. Kermit Dountz and a review of the book "Old World Lace" given by Mrs. W. T. Ulm.

The meeting was opened in ritualistic form by the Regent, Miss Hamilton assisted by the Chaplain, Mrs. Christian Schwarz. The pledge of allegiance to the flag was led by Mrs. Ben Nothstine, and Mrs. James Moffitt led in the singing of the National Anthem.

Mrs. Schwarz read the resolutions for Mrs. Paul W. Cromley, who died Sept. 26. Mrs. Cromley was an organizing and charter member of Pickaway Plains Chapter. It was requested by Mrs. Schwarz that a copy of these Resolutions be placed in the minutes and a copy be sent to the family of Mrs. Cromley.

In her report on national defense, Mrs. Dountz, chose as her subject, "The UN and The DAR". In her talk Mrs. Dountz asked, "do we understand the package deals that are now coming up in the UN? Do we read and study them carefully? Do we realize the number of thinking people who believe we will all become world citizens? Do we lift our voices against this philosophy?"

She continued, "are we complacent and smug regarding all that our ancestors fought and died for, or are we alert and vigilant citizens, and concerned about all that is transpiring in our representative form of government? As DAR members do we appreciate the hours of service our officers and leaders give being watchful patriotic citizens and ever lifting their voices in public and to the members of Congress regarding the needs of our country so our form of government may survive?"

"We should," said Mrs. Dountz, "uphold the reading of prayer before each UN meeting and to keep our flag in the place of honor on the right whenever within the jurisdiction of the U.S.A."

Mrs. Dountz added, "we should oppose any change in the original text of the charter (UN) regarding the right of secession and against any form of World Government."

Miss Hamilton gave a detailed report on Constitution Day And Constitution Week, and thanked all who cooperated in making them a success. A letter of thanks from the State Regent, Mrs. Marshall Bixler was read for the work done.

Mrs. Lawrence Johnston, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Jay Hay, who gave two renditions on the accordian, "The Blue Danube" and the "Two Quitars".

At this time Mrs. Johnson introduced Mrs. Ulm, who presented a review on "Old World Lace". In her review Mrs. Ulm said the desire for beauty in attire found in most primitive and barbarous nations is responsible for the production of the finest and most costly trimming lavished upon a costume.

She said, "the luxury loving Greeks and Romans ornamented their togas and peplums with graceful patterns wrought in contrasting colors or in gold. Like old violins, old lace makes a direct appeal to romantic fancy.

"But Venetian, Alecon, Brussels, Mechlin and Honiton carry us farther than a Stradavarius or an Amati, for rich lace belongs to the class of heirlooms," said Mrs. Ulm.

Treasured from generation to generation, lace gains in addition its intrinsic beauty. Two localities claim to be the birthplace of the handmade lace—Flanders and Italy.

She pointed out, "the progressive steps have been slow and interesting, the first having been taken as far back as the tenth century before Christ. Events of history brought lace, even to the wilderness shores of America."

"If the clatter of machines has replaced the old ballads, sung by the Venetian lace makers, if the wide distribution has taken the place of the Alencon pillow cases made for Napoleon, lace is still lace," declared Mrs. Ulm.

And American women cherish the same heritage of beauty that animated the queens and grand dames of past centuries, she concluded.

Reports of the secretary and treasurer were given. Also reports from chairman of conservation, corresponding secretary, real granddaughters, and approved schools.

Mrs. McAbee, chairman of approved schools made an appeal for boxes to be sent to DAR schools at Tamassie and Kate Duncan Smith, and all clothing, jewelry etc. be brought to either the December or January meetings.

Mrs. Ben Nothstine, flag chairman, reported that two flags had been presented by Pickaway Plains Chapter. One to a kindergarten group held in Methodist Church under Mrs. Richard Plum, and the other to Girl Scout Troop 18, Washington Township School.

Mrs. Charles May requested that the Pickaway Plains Chapter, D.A.R. indorse the name of Mrs. Martin Cromley, central district chairman, for State Chaplain at the 57 state conference to be held in Toledo in March.

At this time Miss Hamilton paid tribute to the organizing members, charter members and past regents who were present for the 29th anniversary meeting. A green vase of white chrysanthemums was given to each member honored by Miss Hamilton.

Those present were Mrs. Orion King, Mrs. G. I. Nickerson, Mrs. W. T. Ulm, Mrs. Charles Pugsley, Mrs. Beryl Stevenson, Mrs. Charles Wright, Miss Marie Hamilton, Mrs. Charles May, Mrs. James Moffitt, Mrs. Donald Watt and Mrs. W. L. Mack to receive the honor.

Assisting Mrs. May in dispensing hospitality were Mrs. Charles Pugsley, Mrs. Ben Nothstine, Mrs. McClure Hughes, Mrs. Emerson Spicer, Mrs. Joseph Peters, Mrs. Martin Cromley, Mrs. T. E. Wilson and Mrs. George Roth.

Is Overweight A Family Trait?

Not unless you belong to the elephant family. In over ninety-nine per cent of the cases, overweight is simply due to overeating. If you are overweight you will be interested in this letter from Sidney J. Wilson, Jr., R. 6, Medina, Ohio. Mr. Wilson writes: "Rennel Concentrate was recommended to me by a very good friend of mine. He told me how he was losing weight and how Rennel Concentrate had done wonders for him. The first week using Rennel I lost 7 lbs. Now my wife is also using Rennel and we both are obtaining wonderful results. Along with losing weight, we have so much more pep than we had before."

Thousands of others have overcome the social and physical discomfort of being overweight with this effective home recipe. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Rennel Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it. No diets to complicate your meal planning. No expensive vitamins to fortify your system from weakness while going without food for you can eat normally. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple easy way to lose pounds of bulky fat and help regain slender, more youthful curves — if reducible excess fat doesn't seem to disappear almost like magic just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Insist on and be sure to get Rennel.

Pickaway Chapter Of DAR Observes 29th Anniversary

Talk, Book Review Highlights Meeting

The Pickaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, celebrated its 29th anniversary at its November meeting Tuesday.

The group, which met in the home of Mrs. Leslie May, also heard a five-minute talk on national defense by Mrs. Kermit Dountz and a review of the book "Old World Lace" given by Mrs. W. T. Ulm.

The meeting was opened in ritualistic form by the Regent, Miss Hamilton assisted by the Chaplain, Mrs. Christian Schwarz. The pledge of allegiance to the flag was led by Mrs. Ben Nothstine, and Mrs. James Moffitt led in the singing of the National Anthem.

Mrs. Schwarz read the resolutions for Mrs. Paul W. Cromley, who died Sept. 26. Mrs. Cromley was an organizing and charter member of Pickaway Plains Chapter. It was requested by Mrs. Schwarz that a copy of these Resolutions be placed in the minutes and a copy be sent to the family of Mrs. Cromley.

In her report on national defense, Mrs. Dountz, chose as her subject, "The UN and The DAR". In her talk Mrs. Dountz asked, "do we understand the package deals that are now coming up in the UN? Do we read and study them carefully? Do we realize the number of thinking people who believe we will all become world citizens? Do we lift our voices against this philosophy?"

She continued, "are we complacent and smug regarding all that our ancestors fought and died for, or are we alert and vigilant citizens, and concerned about all that is transpiring in our representative form of government? As DAR members do we appreciate the hours of service our officers and leaders give being watchful patriotic citizens and ever lifting their voices in public and to the members of Congress regarding the needs of our country so our form of government may survive?"

"We should," said Mrs. Dountz, "uphold the reading of prayer before each UN meeting and to keep our flag in the place of honor on the right whenever within the jurisdiction of the U.S.A."

Mrs. Dountz added, "we should oppose any change in the original text of the charter (UN) regarding the right of secession and against any form of World Government."

Miss Hamilton gave a detailed report on Constitution Day And Constitution Week, and thanked all who cooperated in making them a success. A letter of thanks from the State Regent, Mrs. Marshall Bixler was read for the work done.

Mrs. Lawrence Johnston, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Jay Hay, who gave two renditions on the accordian, "The Blue Danube" and the "Two Quitars".

Thousands of others have overcome the social and physical discomfort of being overweight with this effective home recipe. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Rennel Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it. No diets to complicate your meal planning. No expensive vitamins to fortify your system from weakness while going without food for you can eat normally. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple easy way to lose pounds of bulky fat and help regain slender, more youthful curves — if reducible excess fat doesn't seem to disappear almost like magic just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. Insist on and be sure to get Rennel.

Highlights Listed On Income Levy

An ordinance that would set up a city income tax in Circleville will be up for third and final reading when city council meets on the night of December 6.

Members of the law-making body, explaining that they have not had an opportunity to study the 17-page measure, indicated they will delay a final decision on that date. A "thorough study", they said, must be made of such a far-reaching proposal.

Nevertheless, whether a decision is near or distant, details of the pending ordinance are of vital concern, either directly or indirectly, to almost every grown resident of the city. For that reason, The Herald, in several installments, will carry some of the highlights of the ordinance, quoting sections as they appear in the measure.

The first installment follows:

The ordinance would levy a tax (one-half of one percent has been suggested) to provide for the purpose of general municipal operations, maintenance, new equipment and capital improvements of the city of Circleville on all salaries, wages, commissions and other personal service compensation earned by residents of the city of Circleville; on all salaries, wages, commissions and other personal service compensation earned by non-residents of the city. . . .for work done or service performed or rendered in the city; on the net profits earned on all businesses, professions or other activities conducted by residents of the city; on the net profits earned on all businesses, professions or other activities conducted in the city by non-residents, and on the net profits earned by all corporations as the result of work done or services performed or rendered in the city; requiring the filling of returns and furnishing of information by employers and all those subject to said tax; imposing on employers the duty of collecting the tax at the source and paying the same to the city; providing for the administration, collection and enforcement of said tax; declaring violation thereof to be a misdemeanor and imposing penalties thereof, and declaring an emergency. . . .

DEFINITION

ASSOCIATION — A partnership, limited partnership, or any other form of an unincorporated enterprise, owned by two or more persons.

. . . .an association shall not be taxable as an entity, but any member thereof who is a resident of the city shall be taxed individually on his entire share, whether distributed or not, of the annual net profits of the association, and any non-resident member thereof shall be taxed individually only on that portion of his share, whether distributed or not, of the annual net profits of the association as derived from work done, services performed or rendered, and business or other activities conducted in the city. . . .

DEFINITION

CORPORATION — A corporation or joint stock association organized under the laws of the United States, the state of Ohio, or any other state, territory, or foreign country or dependency.

. . . .(the tax would be levied) on the net profits on and after January 1, 1956, of all corporations derived from work done or services performed or rendered and business or other activities conducted in the city, whether or not such corporations have their principal or any place of business located in the city. . . .

Toledo-Canton Financier Dies

TOLEDO (AP)—Gordon M. Mather, 87, noted Toledo and Canton industrialist and financier, died yesterday in Perrysburg.

He was chairman of the board of the Mather Spring Co. and director in several other companies.

Grandson of the first English-speaking mayor of New Orleans, Mather was born in St. James Parish, near New Orleans. When 15 he went to Canton to work in the steel mills. He once headed the Gshwing Furnace Co., and Alliance Foundry Co., both of Canton, and became vice president of the Canton Brass Co.

In Britain's coinage, a pound is known colloquially as a "quid," a shilling as a "bob" and a penny as a "copper."

A PROUD BUT CAUTIOUS MOTHER is Gretl, famed hippo of the zoo in Frankfurt, Germany, as she keeps a watchful eye on her fourth baby. It appears that Gretl's offspring have a way of getting around. One is in a Kansas City, Mo., park and another in the Tokyo zoo. The third has been staying with mother in Germany. (International)

Grange Chieftain Urges End To Curbs

CLEVELAND (AP)—The master of the National Grange advocates dropping all fixed farm prices and returning to competitive prices with "annual income protection for farmers at a parity level with other parts of the economy."

Herschel D. Newsom told the grange's 89th annual session that both rigid and "flexible" fixed price programs will continue to force farm income down.

He called the dispute over rigid vs. flexible price supports a "fruitless academic argument."

A-Age Problem Said Moral One

CINCINNATI (AP)—A nuclear physicist declared here today that secrets of the atomic nuclear structure may remain hidden from scientists forever unless they strike to "live a Christ-like life."

Dr. Robert U. Moon of the University of Chicago who participated in the Manhattan atomic project, made the statement as he spoke at the University of Cincinnati's religious emphasis week program.

Dr. Moon asserted that even today there is no good theory as to the structure of the atomicnucleus although atomic energy is being produced on an increasing scale.

He declared the problem of living in the atomic age is basically a moral one and "the relation of the individual to God is all important."

Sokolsky's

In this era of a struggle for the minds of men, the issue of materialistic, atheistic Marxism versus the Judaic-Christian acceptance of the mystical powers of God and man, man's relationship thereto cannot be ignored simply because it is politic to avoid unpleasant controversies. Why not have the controversies and see where we come out? The fear of political damage of those who have political aspirations may in the end cause erosion in our civilization.

Ours is a country whose culture derives from the Natural Law in its moral manifestations in the Old and New Testaments. If we reject this, our history, since the early religious settlements, lacks meaning and becomes only a record of material achievements without a spiritual objective.

Such a culture must die as all material things die. If our children are reared in a materialistic environment, they cannot understand why a moral life should have any meaning for them. That may be our most serious current social problem.

More Ag College Graduates Needed

CLEVELAND (AP)—Modern agriculture and its allied fields could use twice as many college-trained men as they are getting now, the 89th annual Grange convention was told last night.

Clarence M. Ferguson, administrator of the Department of Agriculture's Federal Extension Service, said 15,000 new college graduates a year are needed, while colleges supply only about 8,500.

"Agriculture under the impact of new technology, is on the threshhold of a new great day of opportunity for the well-trained youth of tomorrow," he said.

Ferguson spoke at the Grange's youth banquet where winners in the organization's national conservation essay contest were honored.

Winners in scrapbook contests for juveniles included Charlene Sandpuhl of Spencerville, Ohio, and Charles Mc Cormack of Tiffin, Ohio.

BUFFALO BILL, NO. 1 SCOUT, 'RIDES AGAIN'

Famed Indian Fighter's Niece, Curator of Museum Honoring Him, Recalls Exploits of Colonel Cody

By LUCIA PERRIGO
Central Press Association Correspondent

CODY, Wyo.—It was a big show all right. Uncle Will would have loved it.

Some of the biggest names of the national press were there to cover the proceedings. The big mountains and the big sky made a mighty big backdrop, but the biggest attraction of all was a little lady of 80, bird-like in size and bright as a silver dollar.

Mary Jester Allen was having her crowded hour and loving every moment of it. Microphones, cameras and pencils went into action and Mrs. Allen stood there in her shocking pink coat pulling on her heritage of showmanship to see her through.

As founder and curator of the Buffalo Bill museum, honoring her uncle, Col. William F. Cody, last of the great Scouts, who became a folk hero as an Indian fighter, and flashed into the nation's history in a 40-year career as a super showman, Mrs. Allen was relishing the country-wide recognition of her life work.

* * *

PROMPTING the pow-wow was the presentation to Mrs. Allen of the first copy of Buffalo Bill and the Wild West which authors Henry B. Sell and Victor Weybright brought in person to place in her wrinkled but wonderfully graceful hands. A Chicago store had chartered a plane for the press to bring book reviewers to the actual scene of Buffalo Bill's early days.

In the courtyard of the log museum, a replica of Cody's TE ranch house, beneath golden cottonwood trees, Mrs. Allen, who was brought up by Buffalo Bill, recalled:

"The last time I saw Uncle Will, in 1915, I asked him what he wanted as a memorial. He said he wished the TE ranch would be turned into a museum. That wasn't possible; so on July 4, 1927, we opened this museum which is a copy of his ranch house and since then several million people have come to see it."

* * *

BORN the year before the Custer Massacre, schooled on stories of the Indian days, Mrs. Allen delights to recount vividly the story of her Uncle Will's hand-to-hand fight with Yellow Hand, the Sioux warrior, whose war bonnet and scalp are in the museum. Mrs. Allen tells how Colonel Cody, chief of Scouts for the United States, was on leave of absence from the Army appearing on the stage in New York.

At the news of Gen. George A. Custer's death, Buffalo Bill left the stage, and still in costume boarded the first train west from New York. It took him four days to reach the disputed terrain near Wounded Knee. As she remembers, with a twinkle of her blue eyes:

"Yellow Hand saw Uncle Will, still in his costume, and shouted: 'Pahaska, I know you! Come out and fight!' Uncle Will didn't want to. However, he rode out to meet Yellow Hand.

"General King later told me that Uncle Will shot Yellow Hand's horse, then his own horse stumbled into a gopher hole; so both men were on foot. Uncle Will killed Yellow Hand, then sat down and wept."

* * *

INSISTING that the celebration was lengthening her life "ten years," Mrs. Allen recalled the difficulty she had in starting the museum. The 3,000 members of the City Family organization and citizens of Cody bought bonds and built it for $18,000.

Today it is worth more than $500,000, being richer still in its displays of the great Scout's show clothes, the bridle King Edward VII presented to him, the pony express saddle bag he used when a boy of 15, one of three original bags still existent today.

Mrs. Allen, keen of mind and young of heart, proved she too was a showman to the core. One of the nation's first women press agents, she was advance "man" for her uncle's show of 500 persons during 1900-1901, writing feature stories about him and exhibiting his deerskin jackets all be-ribboned and beaded by his wife.

* * *

IT WAS Mrs. A. who interested the late Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney in doing a statue of Buffalo Bill as "The Scout," the country's largest equestrian statue, erected July 4, 1924, on a 100-acre mesa beneath Cedar mountain at the edge of Cody, where the colonel had stated he wished to be buried. His wish was not granted for he lies atop Lookout mountain at Denver.

Corroborating her stories and adding their own coloring to all comers to Cody are Abraham Newton, 92, close comrade of Cody's who still leads the Fourth of July horseback parades in the town; and Cody's adopted son, Fred Garlow, a rancher.

Mary Jester Allen also proudly shows you the Buffalo Bill dam and reservoir which brings living waters to northern Wyoming. Cody sold his water rights for 60,000 acres to the government for $1 with the proviso that the dam be built.

Special Tests Aid Difficult School Cases

Superintendent George Hartman of Circleville city schools told today how psychological tests were made available in city schools this week for individual children who required special attention.

The testing was handled here by Dr. Harold R. Phelps of Ohio State University, working under auspices of the state education department's special education branch. Describing the benefits of such psychological studies, Hartman explained:

"This type of testing is needed when the school cannot establish a learning situation for the child.

"For example, a new pupil was recently enrolled in the fourth grade in Circleville. The teacher tried everything she could think of to reach the child—to hold the child's interest. Nothing would work, so the school needed more facts to make a proper diagnosis of the problem.

* * *

"THE SCHOOL had a well-trained psychologist test the child. A mental age of 4 years, 11 months was established, and an I.Q. of 40. The very best of teachers cannot succeed in teaching a child to read until he has a mental age of at least 6 to 6½ years.

"The child, being past 9 years old, was misplaced in a fourth grade with such a low mental age. And the child was found to be definitely misplaced in regular grade work.

"It was recommended therefore, that he be placed in special education on a pre-reading program similar to that taught in kindergarten.

"Placing a child at his proper learning level is very important. Usually a child placed in a grade beyond his ability is extremely unhappy and carries an extreme dislike for school.

"On the other hand, we find that most children in special education are extremely happy, because they are able to succeed with their assignments.

"It is very difficult to move a child from special education, because they want to stay there. We do succeed in teaching a number of pupils to read in special education, when they would be lost in the regular classroom."

More persons crossed the oceans in airplanes thar in ships in 1954. That was the first year in which this happened.

Wilson Undaunted By Geneva Results

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson says he is not daunted by the apparently barren results of the Big Four foreign ministers conference at Geneva.

Looking at the situation from an optimistic angle, Wilson told a news conference Wednesday "one should not draw the conclusion" that the inability of the foreign ministers to settle outstanding East-West differences will mean "intensification of the cold war."

Prisoners Take Powder In Shower

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Instead of a shower, five prisoners took a powder at Lincoln Heights Jail. Still wearing street clothes, the five were herded into the first floor shower room Wednesday where they climbed a ladder left by workmen and escaped unnoticed through a window. All were either charged or convicted of misdemeanor violations. They had been ordered into the room to change from civilian to jail garb.

BUFFALO BILL, NO. 1 SCOUT, 'RIDES AGAIN'

Famed Indian Fighter's Niece, Curator of Museum Honoring Him, Recalls Exploits of Colonel Cody

By LUCIA PERRIGO
Central Press Association Correspondent

CODY, Wyo.—It was a big show all right. Uncle Will would have loved it.

Some of the biggest names of the national press were there to cover the proceedings. The big mountains and the big sky made a mighty big backdrop, but the biggest attraction of all was a little lady of 80, bird-like in size and bright as a silver dollar.

Mary Jester Allen was having her crowded hour and loving every moment of it. Microphones, cameras and pencils went into action and Mrs. Allen stood there in her shocking pink coat pulling on her heritage of showmanship to see her through.

As founder and curator of the Buffalo Bill museum, honoring her uncle, Col. William F. Cody, last of the great Scouts, who became a folk hero as an Indian fighter, and flashed into the nation's history in a 40-year career as a super showman, Mrs. Allen was relishing the country-wide recognition of her life work.

* * *

PROMPTING the pow-wow was the presentation to Mrs. Allen of the first copy of Buffalo Bill and the Wild West which authors Henry B. Sell and Victor Weybright brought in person to place in her wrinkled but wonderfully graceful hands. A Chicago store had chartered a plane for the press to bring book reviewers to the actual scene of Buffalo Bill's early days.

In the courtyard of the log museum, a replica of Cody's TE ranch house, beneath golden cottonwood trees, Mrs. Allen, who was brought up by Buffalo Bill, recalled:

"The last time I saw Uncle Will, in 1915, I asked him what he wanted as a memorial. He said he wished the TE ranch would be turned into a museum. That wasn't possible; so on July 4, 1927, we opened this museum which is a copy of his ranch house and since then several million people have come to see it."

* * *

BORN the year before the Custer Massacre, schooled on stories of the Indian days, Mrs. Allen delights to recount vividly the story of her Uncle Will's hand-to-hand fight with Yellow Hand, the Sioux warrior, whose war bonnet and scalp are in the museum. Mrs. Allen tells how Colonel Cody, chief of Scouts for the United States, was on leave of absence from the Army appearing on the stage in New York.

At the news of Gen. George A. Custer's death, Buffalo Bill left the stage, and still in costume boarded the first train west from New York. It took him four days to reach the disputed terrain near Wounded Knee. As she remembers, with a twinkle of her blue eyes:

"Yellow Hand saw Uncle Will, still in his costume, and shouted: 'Pahaska, I know you! Come out and fight!' Uncle Will didn't want to. However, he rode out to meet Yellow Hand.

"General King later told me that Uncle Will shot Yellow Hand's horse, then his own horse stumbled into a gopher hole; so both men were on foot. Uncle Will killed Yellow Hand, then sat down and wept."

* * *

INSISTING that the celebration was lengthening her life "ten years," Mrs. Allen recalled the difficulty she had in starting the museum. The 3,000 members of the City Family organization and citizens of Cody bought bonds and built it for $18,000.

Today it is worth more than $500,000, being richer still in its displays of the great Scout's show clothes, the bridle King Edward VII presented to him, the pony express saddle bag he used when a boy of 15, one of three original bags still existent today.

ROUNDUP

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

Here is a good illustration of cooperation in action:

Rural families of Richland County have quit looking for a place to hold community gatherings and picnics. They have their own meeting place in the form of an 80-acre farm, equipped with buildings and facilities for indoor and outdoor recreation.

The project was started after agricultural organizations, youth groups, and church and women's organizations of the county decried the lack of adequate meeting and camping facilities, according to C. N. McGrew, county extension agent. The problem was discussed by the Extension Advisory Committee in 1947 and the result was the Richland Rural Life Center, Inc. The corporation bought the farm the same year.

Here is what has been accomplished on that farm: House was renovated into a combination meeting room and kitchen; barn was made into a recreation hall; four cabins, fire places and picnic tables were added; 12,000 conifers were planted; pond was built in compliance with soil conservation service specifications.

Other improvements are planned. Work days are scheduled every Spring and Fall for face-lifting and odd jobs.

More than 50 groups, with a combined attendance of 3,319 persons, used the center's facilities last year, McGrew said. Improvements at the center represent the efforts of many interested rural groups, according to the county agent.

The center is governed by a board of directors elected by rural people. Two directors are elected from each township.

* * *

Your own fence rows or pastures may have just the young trees you are looking for to add beauty and shade to your farmstead, Kenneth Reisch, extension floriculturist of Ohio State University, reminds Ohio farmers.

Such trees may be selected and marked now while they still have their leaves. Later on this Fall when they become dormant, they may be transplanted.

Red and sugar maple, pin and red oak, hackberry, wild cherry, sycamore, or hornbeam (sometimes called ironwood or blue beech), all make good yard plantings, Reisch says. He recommends the trees be between two and four inches in diameter. They should not be moved until after the leaves have fallen.

In transplanting larger specimens it is best to leave a ball of soil around the roots. Smaller trees may be moved bare-root. The trunk should be wrapped with a layer of protective material, such as burlap, and the tree moved carefully to avoid injury.

* * *

Now is the time for farmers to take a complete look at their soil and water management programs and plan any changes that should be made, according to Floyd Heft, extension soil conservationist of Ohio State University.

If these changes are planned now, the farmer will be ready to move ahead with them next Spring, the soil conservationist explains. He lists several questions which farmers may ask themselves to determine if their programs are doing the job they should:

1. Are my fields suffering from excessive erosion? One tell-tale sign may be found in nearby drainage ditches which are gradually filling up and require frequent maintenance. Another, particularly in hilly sections, may be the appearance of stones uncovered when soil is washed away.

2. Are my crop yields gradually getting higher over the years? In some cases yield increases may not be due entirely to good conservation practices, Heft points out. Hybrid corn, for example, since it was first introduced has accounted for yield increases of about fifteen bushels to the acre. If corn yields haven't increased more than that, some adjustment in the cropping and fertility program may be needed.

3. Are soil and water practices such that I am getting maximum returns per dollar invested in fertilizer?

4. Does my rotation maintain proper balance between soil building and soil depleting crops?

5. Am I giving proper attention to my forage program, including pastures and meadows?

6. Is my land use program designed to give maximum returns in coming years?

7. Do I need to follow special practices, such as terracing, contour farming, strip cropping, waterway development and drainage to properly control the water which falls on my farm?

THE FEATURE-LENGTH, natural color film, "Oberammergau and the Passion Play", will be shown in Circleville High School auditorium at 4 and 8 p. m. next Monday. The picture is being brought here by the local chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority. Mary Martin, chapter president, has appointed Emma Tennant as general chairman in charge of arrangements. The film is based on the world-famed religious drama presented annually in Germany.

School Notes

CIRCLEVILLE HIGH

The spirit of Thanksgiving is growing in the hearts of CHS students. With the popular "turkey day" less than a week away, everyone is busy preparing to share in its foremost meaning.

Special activities will also mark the season.

Both junior and senior SOS clubs are assembling a bushel basket of foodstuffs for a needy family. And these same groups hope to complete a similar project at Christmas time.

Next Wednesday, the Hi-Y Club will present an assembly. The program will include group singing and a talk by a local minister. The boys hope to create a stronger feeling of thanksgiving in the students, and to wish them a happy and safe Thanksgiving vacation.

Dec. 1 Set As Ohio Safe Driving Day

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Can Ohio meet the challenge of going without one traffic death on Dec 1?

That's the goal for the state's motorists and pedestrians as set by Gov. Frank J. Lausche. The governor today proclaims Dec. 1 as Safe-Driving (S-D) Day in Ohio, as it will be for the rest of the nation.

In the first nine months of 1955, Ohio ranked fourth among states in number of traffic fatalities.

This year, the S-D Day campaign has been broadened to include 10 days before and after Dec. 1. During this period, the public will receive daily reports through news media on fatality figures. On S-D Day, the reports will be issued hourly.

Lausche said he hopes the campaign leads to the thing "most needed in the traffic accident situation: Consciousness in every driver that traffic safety is his responsibility, every day."

Synagogue Bans Playing Of Bingo

KIAMESHA LAKE, N. Y. (AP)—The United Synagogue of America has banned bingo or other games of chance for fund raising.

The ban was contained in a code of synagogue practices adopted Wednesday at the group's convention.

The organization's executive director, Rabbi Bernard Segal, said: "In the spiritual life the end does not justify the means."

Lorain Labeled Target Of Reds

CLEVELAND (AP)—A surprise witness in the Federal Court trial of 11 alleged Ohio Communist Party leaders testified yesterday that Lorain was a key target in Communist aims.

The witness, Frank Peoples, 51, a Lorain steelworker, said he attended a Communist meeting in 1948 at which Gus Hall, former Ohio Communist chief and later national party secretary, declared Lorain would be "a good place" to start a revolution.

He said the meeting was held at the home of George Edwards, who he identified as chairman of the Communist Party in Lorain.

Hall was convicted in 1949 with the party's top leaders at a Smith Act trial in New York.

The 11 defendants on trial here are charged with violation of the Smith Act, which makes it illegal to conspire to teach and advocate violent overthrow of the government.

Sheppard Reward Claim Is Filed

CLEVELAND (AP)—The police department's pension fund has filed a formal claim for the $10,000 reward offered in the Sheppard murder case.

County commissioners, who have charge of the money offered by members of the Sheppard family, said however, they will make no move until Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard has exhausted every avenue of appeal.

He was convicted last Dec. 21 of murdering his wife Marilyn, and now is serving a life sentence in Ohio Penitentiary.

ROUNDUP

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

Here is a good illustration of cooperation in action:

Rural families of Richland County have quit looking for a place to hold community gatherings and picnics. They have their own meeting place in the form of an 80-acre farm, equipped with buildings and facilities for indoor and outdoor recreation.

The project was started after agricultural organizations, youth groups, and church and women's organizations of the county decried the lack of adequate meeting and camping facilities, according to C. N. McGrew, county extension agent. The problem was discussed by the Extension Advisory Committee in 1947 and the result was the Richland Rural Life Center, Inc. The corporation bought the farm the same year.

Here is what has been accomplished on that farm: House was renovated into a combination meeting room and kitchen; barn was made into a recreation hall; four cabins, fire places and picnic tables were added; 12,000 conifers were planted; pond was built in compliance with soil conservation service specifications.

Other improvements are planned. Work days are scheduled every Spring and Fall for face-lifting and odd jobs.

More than 50 groups, with a combined attendance of 3,319 persons, used the center's facilities last year, McGrew said. Improvements at the center represent the efforts of many interested rural groups, according to the county agent.

The center is governed by a board of directors elected by rural people. Two directors are elected from each township.

* * *

Your own fence rows or pastures may have just the young trees you are looking for to add beauty and shade to your farmstead, Kenneth Reisch, extension floriculturist of Ohio State University, reminds Ohio farmers.

Such trees may be selected and marked now while they still have their leaves. Later on this Fall when they become dormant, they may be transplanted.

Red and sugar maple, pin and red oak, hackberry, wild cherry, sycamore, or hornbeam (sometimes called ironwood or blue beech), all make good yard plantings, Reisch says. He recommends the trees be between two and four inches in diameter. They should not be moved until after the leaves have fallen.

In transplanting larger specimens it is best to leave a ball of soil around the roots. Smaller trees may be moved bare-root. The trunk should be wrapped with a layer of protective material, such as burlap, and the tree moved carefully to avoid injury.

* * *

Now is the time for farmers to take a complete look at their soil and water management programs and plan any changes that should be made, according to Floyd Heft, extension soil conservationist of Ohio State University.

If these changes are planned now, the farmer will be ready to move ahead with them next Spring, the soil conservationist explains. He lists several questions which farmers may ask themselves to determine if their programs are doing the job they should:

1. Are my fields suffering from excessive erosion? One tell-tale sign may be found in nearby drainage ditches which are gradually filling up and require frequent maintenance. Another, particularly in hilly sections, may be the appearance of stones uncovered when soil is washed away.

2. Are my crop yields gradually getting higher over the years? In some cases yield increases may not be due entirely to good conservation practices, Heft points out. Hybrid corn, for example, since it was first introduced has accounted for yield increases of about fifteen bushels to the acre. If corn yields haven't increased more than that, some adjustment in the cropping and fertility program may be needed.

3. Are soil and water practices such that I am getting maximum returns per dollar invested in fertilizer?

4. Does my rotation maintain proper balance between soil building and soil depleting crops?

5. Am I giving proper attention to my forage program, including pastures and meadows?

6. Is my land use program designed to give maximum returns in coming years?

7. Do I need to follow special practices, such as terracing, contour farming, strip cropping, waterway development and drainage to properly control the water which falls on my farm?

THE FEATURE-LENGTH, natural color film, "Oberammergau and the Passion Play", will be shown in Circleville High School auditorium at 4 and 8 p. m. next Monday. The picture is being brought here by the local chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority. Mary Martin, chapter president, has appointed Emma Tennant as general chairman in charge of arrangements. The film is based on the world-famed religious drama presented annually in Germany.

CIRCLEVILLE HIGH

The spirit of Thanksgiving is growing in the hearts of CHS students. With the popular "turkey day" less than a week away, everyone is busy preparing to share in its foremost meaning.

Special activities will also mark the season.

Both junior and senior SOS clubs are assembling a bushel basket of foodstuffs for a needy family. And these same groups hope to complete a similar project at Christmas time.

Next Wednesday, the Hi-Y Club will present an assembly. The program will include group singing and a talk by a local minister. The boys hope to create a stronger feeling of thanksgiving in the students, and to wish them a happy and safe Thanksgiving vacation.

Dec. 1 Set As Ohio Safe Driving Day

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Can Ohio meet the challenge of going without one traffic death on Dec 1?

That's the goal for the state's motorists and pedestrians as set by Gov. Frank J. Lausche. The governor today proclaims Dec. 1 as Safe-Driving (S-D) Day in Ohio, as it will be for the rest of the nation.

In the first nine months of 1955, Ohio ranked fourth among states in number of traffic fatalities.

This year, the S-D Day campaign has been broadened to include 10 days before and after Dec. 1. During this period, the public will receive daily reports through news media on fatality figures. On S-D Day, the reports will be issued hourly.

Lausche said he hopes the campaign leads to the thing "most needed in the traffic accident situation: Consciousness in every driver that traffic safety is his responsibility, every day."

Synagogue Bans Playing Of Bingo

KIAMESHA LAKE, N. Y. (AP)—The United Synagogue of America has banned bingo or other games of chance for fund raising.

The ban was contained in a code of synagogue practices adopted Wednesday at the group's convention.

The organization's executive director, Rabbi Bernard Segal, said: "In the spiritual life the end does not justify the means."

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl 16, a sophomore in high school. For a long time I have liked this boy (I shall call him Paul), but he never seemed interested in me, until recently. He is 16 and a member of th junior class.

Finally a couple of weeks ago he asked me to a school dance. Of course I accepted. He was very polite and respectful and towards the end of the evening he asked if it was permissible for him to put his arm around me. I said yes; and then when he brought me home, he asked if he might kiss me goodnight, and I let him.

Since then I have talked with several of my girl friends, who tell me that they think I shouldn't have let him kisss me goodnight, although they think his putting an arm around me was all right.

Now Paul has asked me out again, and my friends have advised me to refuse—because they have let him kiss me godnight, night on our first date. However, he is always very nice to me, and I like him very much. Due to my friends' advice, I am so confused that I don't know what to do.

Should I go out with him again? And do you think I was wrong to let him kiss me on our first date? Also, should I have let him put his arm around me?

N. Y.

DEAR N. Y.: It is my impression that you are creating a problem out of thin air. The only "wrong" thing you had done thus far (in respect to Paul) was in talking your head off to friends about him—making an open book of his every move in relation to you. That was a very foolish, immature, and romance - crippling thing to do.

How would you feel, if you were to learn that Paul had been discussing you freely with HIS friends? Asking what they think of your letting him put an arm around you, give you a goodnight kiss, etc.? Your friends pass rejecting judgment on Paul, saying he acted "too fresh" and that you shouldn't accept a second date. But what if his friends were appraising you as "too easy"—and saying he had better be careful, and not get involved. Would you feel they had cause?

In talking your first date to shreds with so-called friends — who've proved poor advisers, in my opinion—you weren't canvassing the propriety of your concessions, so much as you were reliving the experience by rehashing the emotional highlights. You just haven't developed the gumption, and powers of reserve, to digest your uncertainties privately.

Boy Is Chivalrous

What you should have done, if you felt a need of corrective counsel, was to discuss your dubieties with your mother. Or if you felt you couldn't confide in her, you should have tried some other trustworthy older person.

Nobody with good sense approves of careless kissing, of course. But I don't think it is wrong, per se, for a boy and girl who've long known each other favorably (as fellow students and residents of the same community), to kiss in a mood of mutual liking, on a first date.

It seems to me that Paul behaved with charming chivalry in asking if he might put an arm about you and in asking permission to kiss you goodnight. He was responding to your heartfelt interest in him (a sincere interest that dates long back)—and at the same time showing respectful concern to please you. I am sure you sensed that, before you got all mixed up from talking too much—and began to give heed to almost maliciously bad advice about him.

You need an adult, non-competitive confidante, to help you develop moral clarity in the dating field.

Widow Files Suit In Mate's Death

CLEVELAND (AP)—Mrs. Charlotte Naida, widow of a man who died of a coronary thrombosis after a brawl in a saloon, sued two men yesterday for $125,000 in damages.

In her common pleas court petition, she said her bartender husband, Alex, 42, died last Nov. 4 as the result of a beating by Walter Marushat, a cafe owner; and George Dean, a diner operator.

The coroner, however, has ruled he could establish no connection between Naida's injuries and the coronary thrombosis.

The value of direct private investments of United States nationals in Latin America was, by 1954, more than six billion dollars, or not much less than one-half of the total of such investments throughout the world.

Chillicothe Meeting Scheduled Sunday For CBI Veterans

The November meeting of the Ohio State Basha of the China-Burma-India Veterans Association will be held Sunday in Chillicothe. All Pickaway County veterans who served in this theater of war are asked to attend.

The meeting will start at 1 p. m. at American Legion Post 62, with David Hyatt of St. Louis, Mo. as guest speaker. Hyatt is senior vice-commander of the national CBI organization.

At 3 p. m., the Rev. Fr. Joseph Henkel of St. Mary's Mission House in Techny, Ill. will show a color slide program of his years at the Hong Kong Refugee Camp. The Rev. Fr. Henkel spent 23 years in China as a Catholic missionary and also served as chaplain of the 529th Fighter Group of the Flying Tigers.

Anyone desiring additional information on the CBI group may write to: John W. Wilson, 210 E. Royal Forest Blvd., Columbus 14 (who is state junior vice-commander) or to: Mrs. Cleopha A. Merritt, Laurel St., Chillicothe (who is state historian of the organization).

The worst hurricane in United States history from the standpoint of lives lost was the one which struck Galveston, Tex., on Sept. 8, 1900. It caused 6,000 deaths.

The 1956 Buick CENTURY 4-Door Riviera

NOW—
Just touch the pedal and away you go!
(That's the New Variable Pitch Dynaflow*!)

OF COURSE, you can floor the pedal of this stunning new '56 Buick and get the full-power sweep of its advanced new Variable Pitch Dynaflow.

That's how you switch the pitch of this airplane-principled transmission for instant safety-surge acceleration to get out of a tight spot on the highway.

But now you get a brilliant new response at the start of pedal travel, too.

Now you get a solid take-hold for instant take-off in the first inch of pedal action—where most of your normal driving is handled. And you get this great new getaway with a big boost in gas mileage, too.

So there you are, just nudging the pedal, and getting action that makes you feel like you've floored it.

There you are, handling all your normal driving situations with a confident toe-touch—with new surety and snap—and with the happy satisfaction that comes with a sizable step-up in the miles you get from a tankful of gas.

And there you are, rolling along with beaming pride as boss man of the best Buick yet.

For here you have, beating any past Buick, the greatest power yet—the boldest styling yet—the sweetest ride yet—the smartest interior yet—and, by far, the best buy yet.

Drop in on us this week—tomorrow, if you can—and see for yourself that there's never before been anything like this Buick beauty for 1956.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflow is the only Dynaflow Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

It's the '56 Buick—Best Buick yet

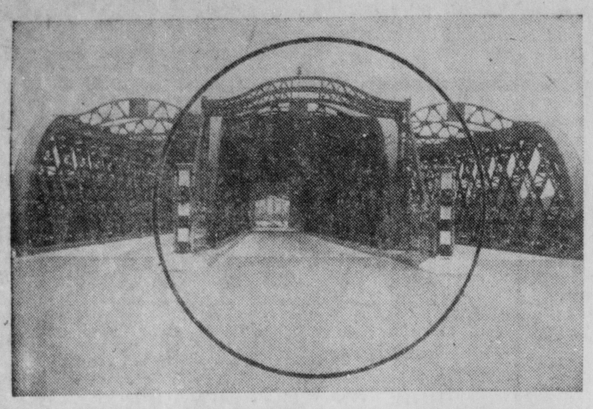
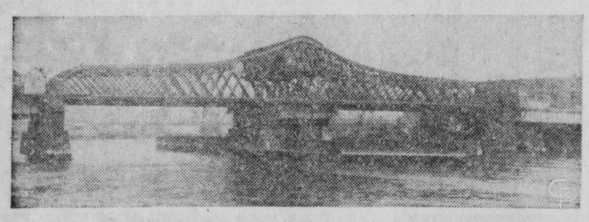
WANNA BUY A BRIDGE?



Center span (circled) of old Third Avenue bridge, which is for sale. This view of the aging span from Manhattan side.



Side view of the Third Avenue bridge. Old span must go, but so far would-be buyers shy at the $125,000 tag placed on it.

By MEL HEIMER
Central Press Association Staff Writer

NEW YORK—Maybe Joseph P. Day, Inc., just doesn't know how to go about it. Maybe it doesn't understand that the correct approach is a casual sidling up to a passerby, a furtive look around and then: "Listen, Jack, I see you are looking at the bridge. Now, if you're really interested, I happen to . . ." And so on. The Brooklyn bridge, of course, has been sold in that fashion countless times.

Whatever the fault, the cold truth is that the Day people have a bridge to sell here in Manhattan—and nobody wants it.

It's a lovely little bridge. It once stretched across the silty, swift-running Harlem river along Third avenue, connecting Manhattan to the ominous wilderness of the Bronx, and it is 302 feet long, weighs 1,000 tons . . . and is available for $125,000 or up. Undoubtedly a bargain at half the price—if you need a bridge.

The dormant state of the bridge-selling market was disclosed to an aghast city when the Day people, who auction real estate and appurtenances, held a public auction at the Hotel McAlpin.

* * *

THE TERRY contracting firm, which is reconstructing the Third Avenue bridge, had commissioned the Days to sell the old one—actually the center section of the bridge—for $125,000 or more.

Twenty-five persons turned up for the auction, but nobody felt like bidding at those prices. Even when the auctioneer, in quiet desperation, offered to sell the 1,000 tons as scrap—the current price is $41.50 a ton and it would cost about $15 a ton to reduce it to scrap—the audience just sat on its hands.

Bernard P. Day, the company's president, sounded a little hurt as he reported that the firm even was prepared to remove the rivets, mark the pieces and assemble the parts on barges, like a neat little batch of toy building-set material. "We're still working on selling it," he said. You could tell he had lost a bit of faith in the bridge-buyers of America.

You couldn't blame the Terry company. It did its part. As far back as last February, it advertised like so, in newspaper "Public Notices" columns here:

"Wanna buy a bridge? Steel swing bridge . . . can carry 100,000 vehicles, 500,000 pedestrians or 10 million chickens daily. Terrific bargain. Cash and carry, or will install anywhere in the world."

A piquant, pert, interest-stirring ad. However, no one bit.

* * *

MAYBE people just don't want old bridges. The Third Avenue bridge was built 56 years ago, in 1899. It has four trusses, or upright steel networks which support the roadway, and can carry three lanes of vehicular traffic. The city is rebuilding the span at a cost of $2,700,000 to provide for four lanes of traffic.

Under the contractural terms, the Terry company was allowed to keep the old section of bridge. And try to peddle it, if it so felt. It so felt—to its chagrin.

If you really feel the urge to pick up this fine, sturdy bridge cheap—well, fairly cheap—be advised that you must pay 30 per cent of the purchase price on the day of sale and the balance in 60 days. If you have it a few weeks and decide it isn't quite what you want, it is unlikely it will be taken back.

Harry J. Terker, Terry's president, says he's confident it can be sold as scrap, if his back is pushed to the wall.

This seems doubtful. Does he honestly think the Brooklyn bridge was sold and resold all those times just as a pile of rusty iron?

What he must do is change his approach. Maybe throw in a hot fur stole or a genuine 28-carat diamond ring with the bridge, and complete the sale in a darkened store entrance on Broadway.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The two-day Ohio Welfare Conference concludes today with panel discussions on delinquency, long-term agency planning for child care, economic and industrial problems and rehabilitation.

Yesterday, Conference President Sam Ausman, director of the Clermont County Welfare Department, told the 1,500 delegates to "avoid the instances of jealousy and lack of cooperation resulting sometimes in actual feuding between public agencies."

Michigan Given Nod To Win Trip To Pasadena Rose Bowl

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK (AP)—The next-to-last glance at the crystal ball for the winners of the weekly college football games.

Last week's figures: 37 correct, 13 wrong, .740. For the season: 312 correct, 110 wrong, .739.

This week's expected winners:

Michigan over Ohio State: Not much to chose between these two Big Ten powers but the game will be played on Michigan's field and the Wolverines know that if they win they go to the Rose Bowl.

Notre Dame over Iowa: Iowa has 14 good players, Notre Dame has three times that many. But it could be close.

Maryland over George Washington: Only the Florida team of early season has made George Washington look badly on the field. The Colonials' defense is rugged but Maryland has enough to pierce it.

Michigan State over Marquette: In a breeze.

UCLA over Southern California: If the season doesn't end soon, UCLA may run out of able-bodied backs. Even if Ronnie Knox and Bob Davenport are shelved, the Uclans want to go on to the Rose Bowl with a victory over their arch-rivals.

Texas Christian over Rice: Jim Swink of TCU gets the same reverence in Texas as a 10,000 barrel oil well.

Auburn over Clemson: How can a team with Fob James and Joe Childress ever lose?

West Virginia over Syracuse: The angry Mountaineers, dumped last week by Pittsburgh, take it out on Syracuse. But the New Yorkers are rugged and could win.

Yale over Harvard: That Yale sovic as the bossman, to decide.

Tennessee over Kentucky: A spot for an upset.

EAST: Pittsburgh over Penn State, Columbia over Rutgers, Boston University over Temple, Holy Cross over Connecticut, Delaware over Bucknell, Lehigh over Lafayette, Princeton over Dartmouth.

SOUTH: Duke over Wake Forest, Florida State over The Citadel, Furman over Davidson, Miami over Alabama (Friday night), North Carolina State over William & Mary, North Carolina over Virginia, Vanderbilt over Florida.

MIDWEST: Colorado over Iowa State, Purdue over Indiana, Missouri over Kansas, Wisconsin over Minnesota, Illinois over Northwestern, Kansas State over Oklahoma A&M, Detroit over Tulsa.

SOUTHWEST: Arkansas over Louisiana State, Baylor over Southern Methodist, Houston over Villanova, Texas Tech over College of Pacific, Oklahoma over Nebraska.

FAR WEST: Arizona over New Mexico, Colorado A&M over Brigham Young, Idaho over Montana, Oregon State over Oregon, Stanford over California, Washington over Washington State.

Cassady, Dawson Wrap Up Big Ten Individual Honors

CHICAGO (AP)—Halfback Howard Cassady of Ohio State and passer Len Dawson of Purdue have all but wrapped up individual statistical honors in Big Ten football while the season ran out on Illinois' Bobby Mitchell.

Sophomore Mitchell, up from the reserve listing to win starting rank only last week, has made the most sensational stride of all on the statistical sheet but just hasn't the time left to try to overtake the two leaders.

Mitchell has carried the ball only 37 times, according to official figures of Big Ten games today, for a net gain of 362 yards and a league-topping 9.7 average. He is second only to Cassady in rushing. The Buckeye star has piled up 571 yards in 90 attempts for 6.2 per trip and a 13 average in five games.

Cassady also leads in scoring with 10 touchdowns and in kickoff returns, with a 28.8 average in seven runbacks.

Dawson's three touchdown passes for Purdue last week boosted him to No. 1 ranking in the aerial department with a record of 67 hits in 118 attempts for 818 yards and 6 TD's. Thirteen interceptions stand against him. His overall marks, however, put him ahead of Wisconsin's Jim Haluska who has connected on 49 out of 89 for 653 yards and 4 touchdowns. He has had six interceptions.

Dawson's aerial yardage gives him top spot in total offense with 796 yards. He has a minus 22 rushing. His average per play is 5.6, a category led by Mitchell's 9.7 and 7.2 for Earl Morrall of Michigan State.

Second in total offense is Iowa's Jerry Reichow with 192 yards rushing and 457 passing for 649.

Ohio State's title showdown with Michigan Saturday pits the Big Ten's top offense against the No. 1 defense. The Buckeyes have averaged 28.4 points and 16.2 first downs per game. The Wolverines' defense has yielded an average of only 11.3 points and also 11.3 first downs.

On a yardage basis, Ohio State has been outgained by Wisconsin, 339 to 319, while Purdue has limited foes to a 216-yard average, compared to 220 for Michigan.

G. Stonerock Holds League High With 66

Gene Stonerock, Williamsport's star forward, has taken an early lead in the county basketball scoring race having ripped the cords for 66 points in two games.

Stonerock was "held" to 25 points by Jackson, but went on a rampage against Darby and seared the nets for 41 points to maintain a 33-point per game average.

Last year, he finished second to Gerhardt of Atlanta with 234 points for a 23-plus game average. Gerhardt led the league with 294 points.

Smith of Jackson is 14 points behind Stonerock. The Wildcat center scored 28 points against the Deers and dunked in 24 against Atlanta in a 51-49 thriller last Friday.

Jones of Monroe has 31 points to his credit in Monroe's only league encounter.

Other high scorers are:

Player	G	FG	FT	Pts
Stonerock (Wmspt)	2	27	12	66
Smith (Jackson)	2	23	6	52

Spieser Scores KO Over Young

CHICAGO (AP) — Chuck Spieser's confidence, as well as his ranking as a light heavyweight contender, got a boost last night when he made quick work of veteran Paddy Young in a televised bout.

The muscular former NCAA champion from Michigan State floored the experienced Young with a left hook in the first round and felled him three times in the second before referee Frank Gilmer stopped the match at 2:45.

Spieser gained a probable next shot at Floyd Patterson in his campaign for Archie Moore's light-heavy crown.

Jet Bluebird Clocked At 216

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The trim, jet-powered Bluebird went on display today and the man who guided her to a new world speedboat record, Donald M. Campbell, quietly debated the future.

Campbell and the 4,000-pound Bluebird skimmed across Lake Mead's waters yesterday at a speed of 216.2 miles an hour, breaking the mark the 34-year-old son of the late Sir Malcolm Campbell in England at 202.32 last July.

The Campbell record, was the average registered in two runs over a measured kilometer distance timed at 239.5 and 193.0.

Ridney Given Title By Chisox

CHICAGO (AP)—Chuck Comiskey and John Rigney officially will run the Chicago White Sox, the office of general manager being eliminated.

Farm Director Rigney, a former White Sox pitcher, was named a vice president yesterday at the club's annual stockholders meeting. Comiskey already carried that title.

The action, in effect, designates Rigney and Comiskey as successors to Frank Lane, resigned general manager who left the club after the 1955 season to take a similar post with the St. Louis Cardinals.

2 CHS Grads Rated Highly At Capital U.

George Troutman and Don Skinner, two former Circleville High School grid stars, placed well in statistics released by Capital University where both are sophomores.

Troutman, 247-pound fullback, carried 66 times for 332 yards, second best in the Lutherans' rushing attack in net yards and also in average yards gained. "Tank" also added eight more yards on the lone pass he caught and scored one touchdown.

Skinner was second in pass receptions from his end position. He grabbed 19 aerials for 235 yards, also second in that department. Skinner also took second in average yards per punt, 32½ for each of his two kicks.

Big George returned two kickoffs for 29 yards, while Skinner returned one for 15 yards. Skinner also ran back four punts for 56 yards. "Dangerous" Don, in addition to his offense value, blocked all four punts credited to Capital University during the season; he has blocked six in two years.

The Lutherans had a 5-3 overall grid record for the season, losing to Heidelberg (34-32), Muskingum (54-14 for their worst beating) and Wittenberg (27-20).

2 New Buck Faces Slated For Lineup

COLUMBUS (AP)—Ohio State will have two new faces in its starting lineup this weekend against archrival Michigan when the two teams collide in the battle for the Western Conference title.

Don Sutherin, used mostly on kickoffs and punts, will open at right half in place of senior Jerry Harkrader, who is through for the season because of a knee injury.

Jim Roseboro, Harkrader's No. 1 replacement, is ailing with knee and ankle injuries but is mending rapidly and may see some action.

Junior Dick Guy, a stalwart in the Bucks' big line, will be back at his old starting post at left tackle after being replaced by Don Stoeckel last week. Guy has been battling a cold for the last few weeks.

The Buckeyes once again spent their one hour and 25 minute practice session polishing up on offense and looking at Michigan's attack. The freshman team mimicked the Wolves' multiple formations in scrimmaging yesterday.

Coach Woody Hayes said the entire Buckeye squad will be ready for action Saturday with the exception of Harkrader. The injured gridder will make the trip to Ann Arbor and may suit up for the game, but his collegiate playing days ended with his brief appearance last week against Iowa.

Hayes said he thought the cold weather in which the Bucks worked out was ideal for practice.

Spartans Looming As Harrier Kings

CHICAGO (AP) — With defending champion Michigan canceling its cross-country schedule this fall, Michigan State looms as successor to the Big Ten harrier crown in the 40th annual conference meet at Washington Park Saturday.

Harry Kennedy and Selwyn Jones carry the Spartans' hopes of a one-two finish. Kennedy has been timed at four miles this season under the Big Ten meet mark of 19:40.5 set by Iowa's Rich Ferguson in 1952.

Snowplow Rescues Stranded Hunters

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — A snowplow, churning up a mountainside through powdered, drifting snow, last night reached nine hunters stranded by a snowstorm at an isolated ranger station.

They had spent two nights of subzero cold in the station, which was stocked with food and firewood.

After Deer Kill, He Gets License

MASON, Tex. (AP) — E. H. Ulrich of Dallas hadn't given much thought to the opening of the deer hunting season in Texas until a deer bounded out of a thicket and killed itself when it crashed into his car.

He drove into Mason, bought a hunting license, returned to the scene, tagged the deer, loaded it onto his car and went on his way.

Byrne, Campy Are Honored For Comeback

NEW YORK (AP) — On June 15, 1951, the New York Yankees announced they had given up on lefthander Tommy Byrne, the wild man of the American League.

They had kept him season after season since 1940 despite his erratic course and lack of control. Finally they sent $25,000 along with Byrne to St. Louis for veteran Stubby Overmire.

Four years later, Byrne, in his second hitch with the Yankees, hurled a fivehit 4-1 World Series triumph over Brooklyn. His World Series start was a reward for his brilliant 16-5 won-and-lost record during the regular season.

For that, the 36-year-old alumnus of Wake Forest College who still makes that North Carolina city his home, bagged 80 out of a possible 99 votes to easily gain the American League Comeback-of-the-Year honors for 1955.

Byrne joins catcher Roy Campanella of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who won the National League comeback honors.

Campy, who had slumped to .207 in 1954 because of a crippled left hand, rebounded with a fourth-place .318 mark that included 32 home runs and 107 RBIs.

Byrne had no opposition whatsoever. The remaining 19 ballots among the voting members of the Baseball Writers Assn. were widely scattered.

They had kept him season after season since 1940 despite his erratic course and lack of control. Finally they sent $25,000 along with Byrne to St. Louis for veteran Stubby Overmire.

Four years later, Byrne, in his second hitch with the Yankees, hurled a fivehit 4-1 World Series triumph over Brooklyn. His World Series start was a reward for his brilliant 16-5 won-and-lost record during the regular season.

For that, the 36-year-old alumnus of Wake Forest College who still makes that North Carolina city his home, bagged 80 out of a possible 99 votes to easily gain the American League Comeback-of-the-Year honors for 1955.

Byrne joins catcher Roy Campanella of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who won the National League comeback honors.

Campy, who had slumped to .207 in 1954 because of a crippled left hand, rebounded with a fourth-place .318 mark that included 32 home runs and 107 RBIs.

Byrne had no opposition whatsoever. The remaining 19 ballots among the voting members of the Baseball Writers Assn. were widely scattered.

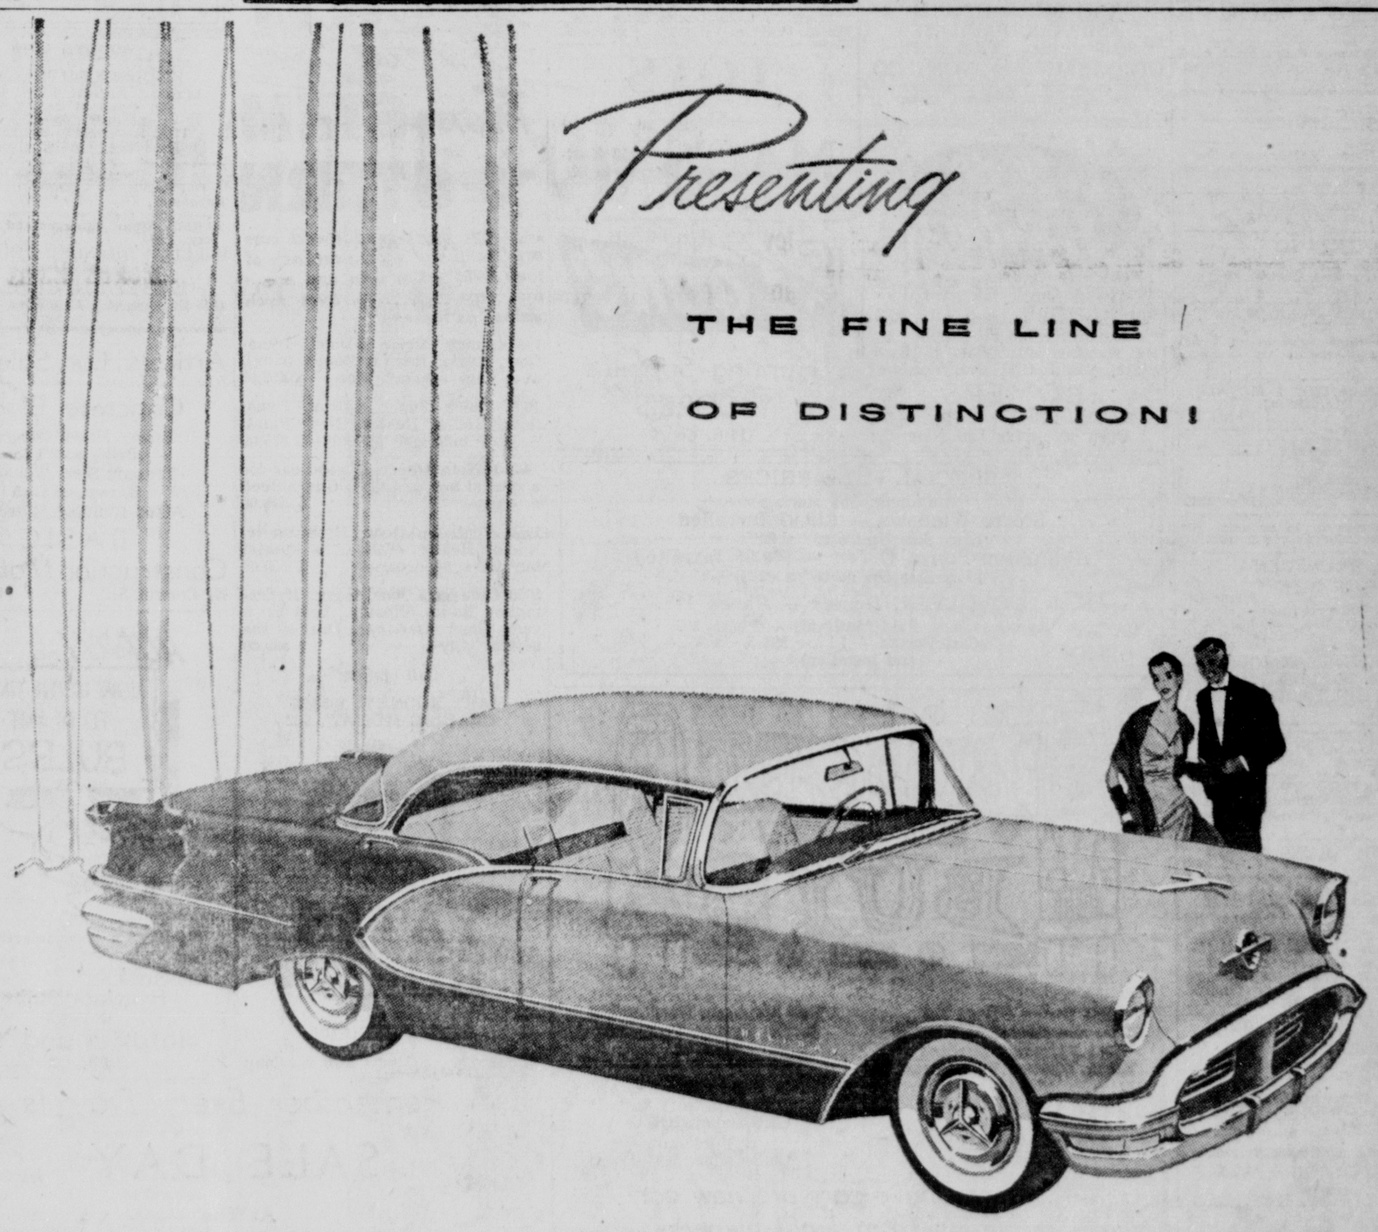
Presenting

THE FINE LINE OF DISTINCTION!



Oh-h-h! That Oldsmobile Ninety-Eight for 1956!
Never has any new car swept on the scene so smoothly . . . so powerfully . . . so magnificently!
New Starfire styling steps far beyond the ordinary in luxury and glamor. New Jetaway Hydra-Matic combines the smooth flow of fluid with the positive go of gears. And the new Rocket T-350 moves up in torque, horsepower and compression.
In every luxurious detail, here is distinction — in any company! It's on dramatic display at our showroom. We invite you to see it . . . and try it on the road.

Three County Teams Risk Clean Records

Three teams will risk clean records Friday night as county league basketball moves into its third week.

The Jackson Wildcats, with a 2-0 record, and 3-0 overall record, travel to New Holland to do battle with the Bulldogs. The Bulldogs lost their initial league start to Monroe, 82-60.

With a surprise victory over the weakened Pickaway Pirates to their credit, the Walnut Tigers will challenge the Darby Trojans on the latter's floor. Darby has a 79-60 victory over Saltcreek to its credit but lost to Williamsport last week, 61-49.

The Ashville Broncos, fresh from their victory over Scioto, will trek to Atlanta. The Red Raiders, have a poor start with no wins and two losses in league play and only one win and four losses in all games played thus far.

* * *

THE SALTCREEK Warriors, who had the bye last week will attempt to rope the Scioto Buffaloes on the latter's floor. Saltcreek has a 0-1 record while Scioto has one win and one loss in league play.

Williamsport will bring its 1-1 record to Pickaway. The Pickaway Pirates lost their only league start to Walnut, 35-32.

The Monroe Indians will enjoy the bye.

New Holland Defeats Good Hope, 61-56

Running up a 17-point advantage over Good Hope by the end of the third quarter, New Holland had to hold on to finally win the tilt from their hosts, 61-56.

The short, fast Good Hope quintet scored 24 points in the last quarter while holding the taller Bulldog team to 12.

Current, of the losing team, was high man for the night with 18 points. Yoeman and Oesterle both scored 16 points for the Bulldogs.

Good Hope used the foul line to full advantage by dunking 18 of 24 tries. New Holland managed to drop in nine of 20 attempts.

NEW HOLLAND'S overall record now stands at two wins and one loss. The only loss came at the hands of Monroe in a county-league game, 82-60.

The reserve tilt was also taken by the Bulldogs, 39-33.

Grid Defense Kings Jolted In Statistics

NEW YORK (AP)—Army, Florida and Georgia Tech jumped to the top in football defense among the nation's major colleges this week as Maryland, Navy and UCLA all fell victim to surprising splurged by rank underdogs last Saturday.

Maryland, the rushing defense leader practically from season's start, was jarred for 157 yards by Clemson after having permitted an average of only 66.6 in eight previous games. The Terps won the game 25-12, but wound up in a back seat to Army in the ground defense list.

NCAA Service Bureau statistics today showed Army with an average yield of 72.3 yards, with Maryland second at 76.7.

Navy was tumbled from the pass defense lead by Columbia to up Navys air yield from 32.3 to 48.4 yards a game, no better than fourth best after Florida (43.8), George Washington (45.0) and Nebraska (45.6).

UCLA, which allowed just 40 points last season, tumbled to third with a 5.6 points-a-game average. Georgia Tech's on top with 4.8, followed by Navy's 5.4.

Michigan State and Tennessee are the only clubs with a better than 40-yard average in punting—42.1 and 41.7 respectively.

Uclans, Trojans Set For Battle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The UCLA and Southern California football teams, those crosstown rivals who bring their bitter local feud into full view of a national television audience Saturday, wind up the serious phase of practice today.

The Uclans, fifth-ranking team in the country and possibly the Pacific Coast Conference's representative in the Rose Bowl, remain the favorite to win but most observers predict it will be close and most likely a grid donnybrook.

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees used more players this year than he had used in five previous World Series. He used 24 different men in the first four games. In 1951 he used 21 Yankees.

Summer Tan earned $151,096 when the colt won the 1954 Garden State Stakes, but his dam, a mare named Miss Zibby, was sold for $400 because nobody thought her worthwhile for breeding purposes.

Three County Teams Risk Clean Records

Three teams will risk clean records Friday night as county league basketball moves into its third week.

The Jackson Wildcats, with a 2-0 record, and 3-0 overall record, travel to New Holland to do battle with the Bulldogs. The Bulldogs lost their initial league start to Monroe, 82-60.

With a surprise victory over the weakened Pickaway Pirates to their credit, the Walnut Tigers will challenge the Darby Trojans on the latter's floor. Darby has a 79-60 victory over Saltcreek to its credit but lost to Williamsport last week, 61-49.

The Ashville Broncos, fresh from their victory over Scioto, will trek to Atlanta. The Red Raiders, have a poor start with no wins and two losses in league play and only one win and four losses in all games played thus far.

* * *

THE SALTCREEK Warriors, who had the bye last week will attempt to rope the Scioto Buffaloes on the latter's floor. Saltcreek has a 0-1 record while Scioto has one win and one loss in league play.

Williamsport will bring its 1-1 record to Pickaway. The Pickaway Pirates lost their only league start to Walnut, 35-32.

The Monroe Indians will enjoy the bye.

New Holland Defeats Good Hope, 61-56

Running up a 17-point advantage over Good Hope by the end of the third quarter, New Holland had to hold on to finally win the tilt from their hosts, 61-56.

The short, fast Good Hope quintet scored 24 points in the last quarter while holding the taller Bulldog team to 12.

Current, of the losing team, was high man for the night with 18 points. Yoeman and Oesterle both scored 16 points for the Bulldogs.

Good Hope used the foul line to full advantage by dunking 18 of 24 tries. New Holland managed to drop in nine of 20 attempts.

NEW HOLLAND'S overall record now stands at two wins and one loss. The only loss came at the hands of Monroe in a county-league game, 82-60.

The reserve tilt was also taken by the Bulldogs, 39-33.

Grid Defense Kings Jolted In Statistics

NEW YORK (AP)—Army, Florida and Georgia Tech jumped to the top in football defense among the nation's major colleges this week as Maryland, Navy and UCLA all fell victim to surprising splurged by rank underdogs last Saturday.

Maryland, the rushing defense leader practically from season's start, was jarred for 157 yards by Clemson after having permitted an average of only 66.6 in eight previous games. The Terps won the game 25-12, but wound up in a back seat to Army in the ground defense list.

NCAA Service Bureau statistics today showed Army with an average yield of 72.3 yards, with Maryland second at 76.7.

Navy was tumbled from the pass defense lead by Columbia to up Navys air yield from 32.3 to 48.4 yards a game, no better than fourth best after Florida (43.8), George Washington (45.0) and Nebraska (45.6).

UCLA, which allowed just 40 points last season, tumbled to third with a 5.6 points-a-game average. Georgia Tech's on top with 4.8, followed by Navy's 5.4.

Michigan State and Tennessee are the only clubs with a better than 40-yard average in punting—42.1 and 41.7 respectively.

Uclans, Trojans Set For Battle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The UCLA and Southern California football teams, those crosstown rivals who bring their bitter local feud into full view of a national television audience Saturday, wind up the serious phase of practice today.

The Uclans, fifth-ranking team in the country and possibly the Pacific Coast Conference's representative in the Rose Bowl, remain the favorite to win but most observers predict it will be close and most likely a grid donnybrook.

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees used more players this year than he had used in five previous World Series. He used 24 different men in the first four games. In 1951 he used 21 Yankees.

Summer Tan earned $151,096 when the colt won the 1954 Garden State Stakes, but his dam, a mare named Miss Zibby, was sold for $400 because nobody thought her worthwhile for breeding purposes.

Pickaway County May Post New Record In Traffic Injuries

10-Month Total More Than 310 And Still Rising

Sheriff's Prediction Of 'Worst Year Yet' Seen Coming True

Pickaway County may be setting a new record in traffic accident injuries!

Records from Sheriff Charles Radcliff's office here show that 30 persons were hurt in auto mishaps throughout the county during the month of October. This, added to the 281 injuries tallied in the first nine months of 1955, goes over the 300 mark predicted by Sheriff Radcliff earlier.

This new total is the greatest recorded by the sheriff's office here. It brings the average to more than 31 injuries a month—an average of at least one a day.

There were 42 accidents last month. Added to the more than 100 mishaps from July through September, this also means an accident a day on the average for the past four months.

* * *

ONE QUIRK to the traffic picture is that there has not been a traffic fatality since August 15. For the first six months of this year, 10 of the 14 deaths chalked up in "Killer" County took place.

Sheriff Radcliff noted that more "trouble" is in store for motorists because bad weather is coming. He said that snow and ice will make driving more difficult.

Power brakes and power steering can get you into trouble when driving on ice because they make it easier to over-control. That fact is pointed out by the National Safety Council in a new booklet on winter driving hazards, based on 16 years of actual research on frozen lakes.

"This will be the first winter during which a large number of cars equipped with power brakes and power steering will be on the road," said Arnold Vey, director of traffic and transportation for the group. "Many drivers have not been adequately instructed in using the new equipment, especially under winter conditions. We need a new look at some of the ABC's of driving today's cars safely and skillfully."

The Council's winter driving booklet covers the ABC's in detail, emphasizing the necessity to practice smooth driving all year so that it is a habit when roads are slippery.

* * *

OVER-CONTROLLING is one of the chief winter driving errors, according to the Council. Starting, stopping and changing direction too suddenly causes many damaging and sometimes fatal skids.

Since power brakes and power steering make it easier to lock the brakes or over-steer as the result of a panicky reaction to an emergency, the Council's booklet recommends that drivers practice using a deft touch on such devices.

Automatic transmissions and hydraulic drives give good starting control on ice and snow, the booklet states. However, if your car has "duel range" transmission it is recommended that the lower or "S" range be used on slippery surfaces.

Here are some tips from the booklet on starting, stopping and steering:

Starting

Adjust the seat correctly so your foot rests fully and easily on the accelerator. Feed gas slowly and smoothly to avoid spinning the wheels. With a gear shift car, start in second. Don't let the clutch pedal out fast. It does not good to lower tire pressure on modern tires. Snow tires may help, and tire chains definitely will.

Stopping

Learn the technique of pumping your brakes. Apply the brakes quickly (lock them) for an instant, and as quickly completely release them for an instant. Repeat this on-off action rapidly to a full stop. The effect is to give short intervals of maximum braking, alternated with short intervals of effective steering when wheels roll. This pumping method is especially important with power brakes.

Council tests have shown that reinforced tire chains cut braking distances in half on both snow and ice. The reinforced tire chain has projecting teeth or cleats on the link of each cross chain. They not only igve the best stopping and traction performance, but also provide excellent resistance to side skids.

Some snow tires give substantial advantage in loose snow and slush, but they are not much more effective than regular tires for ice or hard-packed snow, the booklet advises.

Steering

Turn your wheel carefully to take advantage of the maximum steering power of your tires. If you should over-steer, straighten a bit and then turn again. This can be compared to the "pumping" technique recommended for brakes. If you start to skid, turn your wheels immediately in the direction of the skid, but don't over-compensate.

'Church Of Air' Tops Radio's List Of Popular Programs

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the most popular radio programs on the air is not a quiz program or a variety program or a comedy program. It's a religious program and it's called "Church of the Air."

Every Sunday morning more people tune to "Church of the Air" on CBS Radio than listened to the Apostle Paul during the many years of his ministry.

During the 24 years of its radio history "Church of the Air" has presented more than 1,000 clergymen of Protestant, Catholic, Jewish and Orthodox faiths and hundreds of thousands of listeners have written in gratitude for inspiration they received from the program.

"'Church of the Air' is not really a church service," says its guiding force, George Crothers, CBS director of educational and religious broadcasts. "It cuts down the formal church service to good liturgical music, a prayer, scripture, and a brief inspirational message."

The advice Crothers most frequently gives the guest clergymen from all sections of the country who appear on the program is this: "You are not selling ethics or entertainment. Let's get real religion in what you have to say, for radio represents the most effective way of preaching the Gospel that man ever invented."

CBS is aided in running the program by a board of consultants from many faiths. In selecting its guest clergymen, "Church of the Air" takes into consideration such elements as the religious population of a faith and how widely it is spread in the nation. Not every Protestant denomination has been represented, of course. It couldn't be. There are 260 denominations in the country and some are very small. Leaders of all the major faiths have praised the program highly.

Change Said Need In Rate Fixing Laws

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Edward J. Kenealy, a state utilities commission member, says Ohio law regarding fixing of utility rates should be changed.

Kenealy expressed his views yesterday before an Ohio Legislative Service Commission committee studying utility rates. The committee will report on its findings to the General Assembly and recommend whether or not the law should be changed.

Another utilities commission member, Ralph Winter, said he could not answer whether Ohio utility laws should be changed until he received satisfactory answers to six questions:

Would a new law mean more rates cases? Would it mean greater costs of regulating utilities? Would it raise or lower subscriber rates? Would it affect quality of service adversely? And would it affect utilities' costs and simplify regulations?

Kenealy maintained if the present law stands, it should be simplified to make it less costly to figure utility rates.

The law says utilities may earn a reasonable return on what it would cost them to replace their property new, less depreciation.

Jurists Studying Lawyer Discipline

COLUMBUS (AP) — The Ohio Supreme Court yesterday heard arguments and took under study a proposal that it assume sole jurisdiction over discipline of lawyers.

The proposal by the Ohio State Bar Assn. would change the present practice of permitting lower courts to handle disbarment and reinstatement of attorneys with the high court as a reviewing body.

The proposed change, backed by the Common Pleas Judges Assn., would allow the Supreme Court to exercise discipline through a 15-member board of commissioners on grievances and discipline.

Thug Forces Clerk To Give Service

OGDEN, Utah (AP)—Detectives are looking for a man whose taste for beer runs high despite sub-zero temperature. He forced a clerk at the California Free Market here to sell him six bottles of beer at 1 a.m. Wednesday. That's after the state's legal deadline of midnight for selling beer. He put a $5 bill on the counter, pulled out a pistol, asked for his change, and left with the beer.

Marysville Hit By Fire In Business Area

MARYSVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Damage has been unofficially estimated at $200,000 in a fire which swept three downtown business establishments here last night.

The fire, which observers said was the worst here since a 1927 blaze, gutted the inside of the Fladt hardware store and Lee Furniture Co. in one building. The Snider electric shop in an adjoining building was singed by flames, but most damage came from water and smoke.

Firemen from six departments in three counties kept the blaze from spreading to the adjacent evening Journal-Tribune newspaper building. That structure suffered smoke damage.

Marysville Fire Chief Kelvin Payne issued the damage estimate.

Inspector Thomas Finch of the state fire marshal's office said he and members of the Marysville department will probe the cause of the fire today.
